Heiress considered 'armed, dangerous'

Warrant issued for Patty

By WILLIAM SAUL
Associated Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst, the soft-spoken coed who screamed "let me go" as she was violently kidnaped 3½ months ago, was hunted today by hundreds of lawmen as an "armed and extremely dangerous" member of the terrorist group which abducted her.

With six of Miss Hearst's alleged captors dead after a series of weekend developments in which the case began to break open, the FBI led a blitzing search in this city today for the remnants of the nearly decimated Symbionese Liberation Army, and for Miss Hearst.

The FBI said Sunday night it would charge Miss Hearst as the woman who pumped automatic rifle fire into a sporting goods store on Thursday, the incident that triggered the army of lawmen into action as they began to close in on the SLA.

The FBI said it believes Miss Hearst, who 106 days ago was pursuing her art studies and quietly planning a summer wedding, to be part of what is left of her captors.

"Apparently she has joined forces with the SLA," William A. Sullivan, assistant director of the Los Angeles FBI office, said of the 20-year-old newspaper heiress Sunday night. He added:

"She will be given the opportunity to surrender. If she opens fire on FBI agents or police, the fire will be returned."

Police said early today all units were seeking a young white woman and two black men "considered armed and dangerous and may be suspected SLA members" who tried to offer "several hundred dollars" to a landlady if she would give them a room Sunday night.

The woman was described as 18 to 20, blonde hair, blue eyes, with a sawed-off shotgun on a sling concealed under her coat. Miss Hearst has brown hair and brown eyes. The men were described as in their 20s, one 6-foot-3 and the other 5-foot-4.

Police said when the landlady refused to rent the room, she was slashed at with a knife. Her clothing was cut but she was unharmed. Her assailants reportedly fled in a red and black sedan.

Named in a warrant charging federal firearms violations were Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris, a husband and wife in their late 20s. The Harrises are white.

If there was any solid SLA connection with the two black men sought early today, police did not give it.

Six persons, including acknowledged SLA leader Cinque, are dead, victims of a Friday night shootout with an estimated 500 law officers that lasted more than an hour before their hideout house burned. When the charred remains of all six were finally identified by Sunday afternoon, the dead included what was believed to be all the top leaders of the SLA, which now appears not to have numbered more than a dozen.

In tape recordings issued as the country's first political kidnaping unfolded, Miss Hearst pledged her allegiance to the SLA, renounced her family, ridiculed her fiance and repeated the violent SLA goals of revolution on behalf of the people. But her family always said it believed the statements were coerced. Most authorities appeared to believe that, until this weekend.

Formal complaints were to be filed today against Miss Hearst and the Harrises, who Sullivan said he believed were still in Southern California. A youth who identified Miss Hearst for the FBI said she told him she raked a sporting goods store with rifle fire as she and the Harrises made their getaway after a bungled attempt to shoplift a pair of 49-cent socks.

Randolph A. Hearst, Patricia's father, was "taking it pretty badly"

More court proceedings in Watergate cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new round of court proceedings is getting under way in preparation for next month's conspiracy trial of two former Nixon lieutenants and the agents they allegedly dispatched to burglarize the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell scheduled four days of hearings, beginning today, to hear more than two dozen motions ranging from dismissal of charges to demands for White House materials to prove national security was involved in the break-in.

Meanwhile, Watergate was said to be hurting Republican fund raising efforts, and President Nixon's chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. was quoted as saying he was so disturbed by the transcripts of the Watergate tapes that he had to reevaluate his job.

Haig, however, through an aide denied as totally false the Newsweek report.

"Gen. Haig has never implied the need to re-evaluate his position and he challenges Newsweek to support this report," his associate said from the Florida White House at Key Biscayne.

The fund raising problems were discussed by Republican leaders in separate interviews Sunday.

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, Rep. Robert Michel, head of the House Republican Campaign Committee, and GOP chairman George Bush all said Nixon should not resign. "The country, Bush said, "should leave aside political expediency and see the (impeachment) process through.

The main arguments before Gesell, to be heard Tuesday, will be whether the six men charged can use national security as a defense to the conspiracy charges. Gesell has said that if it can be proven foreign policy was involved he might have to dismiss the charges. Among those charged are former top Nixon aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson.

In another court, a ruling was expected today from Judge Barrington Parker on motions to dismiss a perjury indictment against Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California or, failing that, to transfer the trial there.

A three-count indictment returned April 3 accuses Reinecke of lying to a federal grand jury about certain details of his role in helping to arrange for the 1972 Republican national convention in San Diego, Calif. The convention later was shifted to Miami Beach, Fla.

At a pre-trial hearing last week, Reinecke's attorneys argued that he had been trapped and misled by Watergate prosecutors into believing he would not be indicted if he agreed to cooperate and testify.

He opposes state controller Houston I. Flourney in the June 4 primary for governor and his attorneys in California have said he wants to get his trial over with before then.

John J. Sirica, the judge most involved in Watergate matters, also had a busy week ahead in four different areas.

He was expected to rule on whether President Nixon must turn over tape recordings of 64 conversations to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who has subpoenaed them for the Sept. 9 trial of seven Watergate cover-up defendants.

He also promised to release the long-awaited experts' report on causes of an 18½-minute gap in a tape surrendered earlier by the White House. The release depended on when the report, turned over to Sirica last week, was printed.

Tuesday, Sirica will sentence Jeb Stuart Magruder, the former White House and re-election committee official who was instrumental in disclosing the Watergate cover-up. Magruder pleaded guilty last August to one count of obstructing justice. The charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The judge also is involved in litigation before the U.S. Court of Appeals in an effort by five of the cover-up defendants to have him removed as the trial judge. The government was to respond to the appeals court petition today. It was expected that the court then quickly will decide the case from the legal papers or schedule a hearing on the matter.

Truckers reject shutdown proposal

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP) — Independent truckers meeting near Franklin voted overwhelmingly Sunday to stay on the roads.

The truckers rejected a proposal for a second nationwide truck strike, with about two-thirds of the 500 present voting against the strike.

Spokesmen for the truckers cited various reasons for the vote, including stabilization of fuel prices and the timing of the proposed shutdown.

Truckers said the freight business is in a slow period now, and large trucking companies could pick up the slack from the shutdown.

Others said diesel fuel prices have stabilized in recent weeks.

Carl Bray, an Ohio trucking leader, attributed the defeat of the strike vote to dissension among truckers, including the dispute between Hill and Parkhurst.

One of the truckers present, who favored the strike, said things haven't improved since the last national shutdown early this year.

"The six per cent surcharge they gave us was eaten up by fuel increases before it went into effect," said the trucker, who refused to identify himself.

"I run in 38 states," he said. "Fifteen months ago, I was paying 32 cents a gallon for fuel. When we went out (on strike) this year, I was paying 42 to 48 cents a gallon.

"Now, it's 52 to 57 cents," he said. He added, however, that he would abide by the vote.

Parkhurst, who attended the meeting, said he wasn't sure the vote reflected the true sentiment of independent drivers.

"We don't know how many voting here were owner-operators and how many were company drivers," he said. "There are ways to load up meetings, although I'm not saying it happened here."

The Ohio vote was being watched closely in other states because of its possible impact on shutdowns there. Ohio was a focal point in the earlier shutdown, and some felt a vote against the strike might deal a fatal blow to any national shutdown.

In at least two other states— Indiana and New York—truckers called local news media and claimed the Ohio truckers had approved the shutdown.

Report Sowle learned of kidnap plot

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University President Claude Sowle resigned after learning of a kidnap plot against a member of his family, it was reported today.

The reporter said Sowle had requested a check by OU police Friday and that the police had uncovered a kidnap scheme in the planning process, a spokesman for the newspaper said.

OU security police refused to confirm the statement.

Meanwhile, William Morris, chairman of the OU Board of Trustees, said Monday Sowle has agreed to reconsider his resignation.

Lottery ticket measure pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A House-passed bill to make sure Ohio's tavern and bar operators can sell state lottery tickets come up for a vote Tuesday in the Ohio Senate.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, sponsor of the constitutional amendment that lifted the ban against lotteries and a principle figure in its implementation, said "I don't expect any problem with the bill in the Senate."

If it passes and is approved by Gov. John J. Gilligan as expected, bar and tavern owners, as well as grocers who sell beer and wine, will be among an estimated 10,000 Ohio business owners selling 50-cent lottery tickets starting in mid-August.

They will be paid five per cent, or 2½ cents for each ticket they sell, under agent licensing regulations adopted by the newly created State Lottery Commission.

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, introduced the pending measure as a result of an existing regulation of the State Liquor Control Commission. It prohibits liquor permit holders from promoting a game of chance.

Mottl said the regulation is "nebulous," and may or may not apply to the lottery. But he said the bill would prevail in any case, and that he believes the liquor department would like to have the matter clarified.

The same problem had to be worked out in some of the other states which adopted a lottery, the senator said.

The Cuyahoga County lawmaker said he does not expect opposition in the Senate based on assertions that sale of tickets to drinking patrons is conducive to "having them blow their weekly pay checks."

That argument was presented forcefully when the bill was debated in the House last Feb. 26, and it finally passed on a second roll call SB43.

Mottl said he is prepared to offer the Senate statistics from other states which show that this concern is not well-founded.

Among other things, Mottl said the statistics show that supermarkets are the leading sellers of lottery tickets with liquor spots coming in second. "This puts down the argument that wholesale numbers of people are blowing their pay checks on the lottery," he said.

Viet Reds plan more attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's Communist party has ordered intensified attacks in South Vietnam over the next couple of months, U.S. intelligence sources report.

However, military analysts said the orders indicate the attacks will be short of a major offensive.

Widespread fighting across South Vietnam in the past few days may reflect the new orders, which sources said the Communist command recently issued to its main-force troop units there.

The orders were said to be based on a resolution adopted by Lao Dong party leaders in Hanoi, calling for increased military operations to support what was called "the political struggle" in the South.

As U.S. analysts read them, the Communist aims are to bleed Saigon's army, panic South Vietnam civilians and erode their confidence in the Saigon government.

This is in line with over-all Communist strategy for 1974, as outlined by intelligence reports last December. Basically, this strategy seeks the progressive weakening of the Thieu regime without escalating the war back to full scale.

The Communists already have made considerable progress toward another objective, gradually widening control in border regions of South Vietnam.

The stepped-up fighting comes at a time when Pentagon officials say the South Vietnamese will have to save ammunition because Congress has rejected an increase in U.S. military aid for the last two months of this fiscal year.

Charity event draws 285 riders, 2 runners

By GEORGE MALEK

More than 285 bicyclists participated in the 20-mile bicycle ride for St. Jude's Children's Hospital Sunday. The total included two distance runners who accompanied the riders.

The number of participants was many times larger than the 41 persons who took part last summer, and only three dropped out this time as opposed to five last year.

Two of the three who did not finish were Miami Trace High School distance runners Ernie Perry and Joel Vannorsdall, both of whom were traveling "on the hoof." Vannorsdall completed the first six miles of the 20-mile course before hanging up his sneakers while Perry legged it out for nearly 15 miles.

Perry, who is the school record-holder in the two-mile run at Miami Trace, had never run more than five miles at a time before Sunday's jaunt. When he finally "ran out of gas" at the three-quarter mark of the course, he was not very far behind the rear guard of the bicyclists.

Both runners were sponsored by the Miami Trace track team and a number of students and faculty members.

The other non-finisher was a young lady who became careless during the long ride and "dumped" her bike after hitting a rock. She received very minor injury.

Congress faces several measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $23 billion education bill that would extend several of the most important school aid programs for four years is coming up for a vote and probable passage in the Senate.

Restrictions on busing to achieve desegregation, the most serious hurdle to passage, were cleared last week with adoption of an amendment containing some new limitations. The courts, however, would still be free to order busing where judges decide this is required to maintain equal rights.

The Senate has agreed that no more antibusing proposals will be offered during today's final debate. But it has scheduled action on at least 11 other amendments before voting later in the day.

The big fight is expected on a move to cut military aid to South Vietnam from $1.4 billion to $900 million.

Later in the week, the House plans action on a community services bill to provide a new home for antipoverty programs. The Nixon administration wants to end by June 30 the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipoverty agency set up 10 years ago.

The House also is to take up a bill raising the national debt limit from $475.7 billion to $495 billion and perhaps a measure to boost oil industry taxes by $14 billion in the next six years.

The House Judiciary Committee will continue for three days starting Monday its private review of the evidence in the Nixon impeachment inquiry, concentrating on the Watergate break-in phase.

The Senate is scheduled to go back Monday to debate on a standby energy conservation bill.

Some senators have said they will try to attach an oil price rollback provision to the measure. A similar provision led to a veto by President Nixon of an emergency energy bill early in this session.

Both the House and Senate will begin their fourth recess of the year Thursday. This one, arranged to cover the Memorial Day weekend, will end next Tuesday.

Newsman's contempt case heard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — TV anchorman Walter Cronkite and several other top reporters are testifying in support of a colleague who is risking another jail term in order to keep confidential news sources secret.

CBS anchorman Cronkite is one of several top reporters scheduled to appear at the court hearing which begins today to determine whether William Farr, a Los Angeles Times reporter who has served 46 days in jail, can be imprisoned again.

The issue on which they will be asked to testify is whether Farr, in refusing to reveal sources of a story during the Manson trial, was following an established ethical and moral principle of journalism.

The case, which has been in litigation more than three years, involves a demand by Manson trial judge Charles H. Older that Farr tell him which two of six attorneys in that trial violated a court order by giving Farr information for a story. Farr refused, saying he promised his sources confidentiality and could not break that trust.

Aussie vote seen rebuff for Whitlam

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's Labor government appeared today to have won reelection, but newspapers and opposition politicians said the Laborites' narrow victory margin was a warning from the voters.

The latest returns showed Sunday that Labor had won 64 seats in Saturday's race for the 127-member House of Representatives, while Bill Snedden's Liberal-Country party coalition had 57. Six seats were undecided. The old House had 125 seats, 67 held by Labor.

Most analysts predicted the final results—which may not be known for several days—will give Labor a majority of one to three seats. The leader of the majority party or coalition in the House becomes prime minister and forms the government.

In the tight race for the Senate, the experts predicted Labor may take from 29 to 31 of the 60 seats. It held 26 in the old Senate.

Snedden, 47, had forged his campaign on what he saw as voter discontent over the country's 14 per cent inflation rate. He refused to concede the election by Sunday night, although he said Labor appeared to be winning a majority.

Snedden said Labor's lack of a big margin, and its apparent loss of seats, was a warning to Whitlam.

The Sydney Morning Herald agreed, saying in an editorial that "for the Labor party and especially for Mr. Whitlam, even the best result in the present confusing circumstances represents a sharp rebuff."

Patty Hearst

and was not expected to have any comment until later today, said a spokesman at the family home in Hillsborough, Calif.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, had already endured tense waits while authorities determined if any of four dead women in a fire-gutted house was his daughter.

First there was a wait of 20 hours until the charred bodies of the first three women found in the rubble of the house after the Friday shoot out were identified. Then there was a wait of about three hours after a body of another white woman was found Sunday morning.

The dead included Donald David DeFreeze, 30, the SLA leader known as Cinque; Nancy Ling Perry, 26, the group's theoretician; and SLA members Patricia "Mizmoon" Soltysik, 24; Camilla Hall, 29; Angela Atwood, 25, and William Wolfe, 23.

Exploded cartridge belts were found around the disfigured bodies of Miss Soltysik, Miss Perry and Miss Hall. The county coroner said Miss Hall died of gunshot wounds in the head, as did DeFreeze. He said tests were being conducted to find out if any of the victims had committed suicide as their hideout crumbled in flames Friday.

Police also were still seeking Thero Wheeler, an escaped convict who knew DeFreeze in prison and who was identified in published reports as one of the persons who dragged Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4. Wheeler's girl friend said recently that he has broken with the group.

Meanwhile, authorities released Christine Johnson, 35, who ran from the besieged house during the Friday gun battle, and had been booked for investigation of harboring criminals. The charges were dropped.

Her 18-year-old son, James, told the Los Angeles Times he had talked with a woman he identified as Miss Hearst in the house less than 24 hours before the holocaust that killed the others.

James said the woman affirmed her allegiance to the SLA and that she told him: "They'll have to kill me before I go back, I'm not going back there."

He said the woman left the house Thursday night with two black men who said "they were just getting away from the heat."

Early today lawmen flocked back to the neighborhood of the Friday shootout after receiving a report that two black men and a white woman had offered a woman "several hundred dollars" to allow them to rent a room. They said the woman refused and that before fleeing at least one of the persons tried to slash her with a knife, but did not injure her.

They said it was "possibly connected" with the SLA.

The FBI's informant, Tom Dean Mathews, 18, said a woman he identified as Miss Hearst and two other persons—the Harrises—held him for more than 12 hours Friday after commandeering his van truck in a getaway from the sporting goods store shooting. He said the woman called herself Tania and said she was a willing participant in the April 15 bank holdup in San Francisco which netted more than $10,000.

Sullivan said information about Miss Hearst's participation in that bank robbery would be presented to a grand jury in San Francisco today.

He also disclosed that a second man, Frank Richard Sutter, was abducted after Matthews was released about 6:30 a.m. Friday. The FBI agent said Sutter was kidnaped when Miss Hearst and the Harrises allegedly commandeered his Lincoln Continental.

He was released about noon Friday in the Griffith Park area north of downtown Los Angeles, and he later found his car nearby. Sullivan said Sutter identified "one or more of the trio."

It was the sporting goods store shooting Thursday that alerted police that SLA members were in Los Angeles, sparking a manhunt that led to a house in predominantly black southcentral Los Angeles where Friday's fierce gun battle and fire took place.

The NYSE broad based index rose .16 to 46.72 at noon.

First National Bank of Chicago announced an increase in their prime lending rate to businesses to 11¾ per cent from 11.4, effective Tuesday.

Continental Oil, the Big Board's volume leader at noon, was down ⅜ to 36⅞ with a 45,000 share block traded at 37, followed by Westinghouse Electric, unchanged at 15⅞, and ITT, up ½ to 18⅛. Con Edison recovered ⅜ to 8⅞.

Fair skies and moderate temperatures were expected to continue in Ohio through Tuesday. But the National Weather Service forecast showers by midweek.

Temperatures Sunday night dipped into the 40s and 50s, but were expected to continue in the 70s during the day. Residents along the Lake Erie shoreline anticipated highs in the upper 60s, while the low 80s were expected for the Ohio River region.

The weatherman said temperatures in the 80s would cover much of the state Tuesday, followed by showers and thundershowers later in the week.

South Vietnamese launch offensive

BEN CAT, South Vietnam (AP) — Backed by heavy air and artillery support, South Vietnamese troops launched a three-pronged counter-offensive today against North Vietnamese forces 25 miles north of Saigon.

They were moving against the village of An Dien, captured Friday by the North Vietnamese, about 1½ miles southwest of Ben Cat in the strategic "Iron Triangle" area along the Saigon River. Government artillery and planes were blasting the village, crumbling scores of ramshackle tin-roofed homes. Most of An Dien's 2,000 civilians reportedly have fled to government lines.

British study defense cutback

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Britain's Labor government expects to decide this October on defense cuts even bigger than those made in 1968, says a ranking defense official.

Will Rodgers, British minister of state for defense, made the comment on a trip through the Far East to collect the views of friendly governments on Britain's military presence in the area. He already has visited Malaysia and Singapore and will go on to Australia.

Rodgers said the 1968 defense cuts, which substantially reduced Britain's ground commitments east of Suez, "did not involve the savings of the size we are talking about now."

"We consider the United States is the only country that is sincerely working for peace in the Middle East. ... It has abandoned its traditional support for Israel because it believes in human justice," Atiki said."

Dead SLA members had normal backgrounds

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A black prison escapee and five young white radicals lived briefly with guns, leftist rhetoric and dreams of revolutionary victory.

But as their charred, disfigured bodies were dug from the ruins of a Symbionese Liberation Army hideout during the weekend, the words from one of their threatening communiques rang hollowly prophetic:

"There are two things to remember about revolution. We are going to get our asses kicked, and we are going to win."

Behind the words and exploits of the SLA and its leader, Donald David DeFreeze, were five people whose backgrounds hardly would portend their deaths in a blazing Los Angeles bungalow:

William "Willie" Wolfe, 23, a gifted young man who in high school was a National Merit Scholarship finalist;

Patricia Monique Soltysik, 24, who was a high school honor student;

Camilla "Candy" Hall, 29, Minnesota-born daughter of a Lutheran minister and a former social worker.

Their paths began to cross at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, where some of them tutored a prison support group called the Black Cultural Association.

Imprisoned there was DeFreeze—the acknowledged head of the SLA and the man who called himself Cinque, after the leader of a slave rebellion. Here is some of what is known of them:

DeFREEZE

The eldest son of a middleclass black couple from Cleveland, DeFreeze dropped out of school at 14, went to reform school for two years, then was paroled.

"I was still lonely," DeFreeze later wrote to a judge. "I didn't love anyone nor did anyone love me." He subsequently married a Newark, N.J., mother of three.

"I worked two jobs and was a thief in between," he wrote. "She had all that she wanted, TVs in every room. Her home looks better than a movie star's and still she wanted more."

Distraught over a legal separation, he diverted himself with guns and firecrackers. He was arrested in California and New Jersey on weapons charges but evaded jail.

In his last arrest, DeFreeze was wounded in a 1969 gun battle with police after trying to cash a stolen check. Sentenced to five years to life, he was sent to Vacaville, where authorities say he was obsessed with religion.

Later he was transferred to Soledad Prison and escaped in March 1973. But it was at Vacaville that he apparently laid the groundwork for the SLA's cause and recruited the other members.

PERRY

Nancy Perry frequently visited Vacaville when she was not selling fruit juice at a Berkeley street stand. The onetime conservative who endorsed Goldwater for president in 1964 had undergone a transformation that included drug use and leftist political beliefs.

Born in Santa Rosa, Calif., the daughter of a furniture store owner, the petite young woman with piercing dark eyes was a high school cheerleader and a class secretary. She attended Whittier College and then transferred to the University of California at Berkeley to study English.

She was married in 1967 to Gilbert Scott Perry, a pianist and composer who described her as "loving." The couple separated after six years.

ATWOOD

The Indiana University graduate came to Berkeley with her husband, Gary, in 1972; they split up a year later. Mrs. Atwood later moved in with fellow Indiana natives and reported SLA members Emily and Bill Harris. The Harrises were charged Sunday with gun violations in connection with a shootout Thursday at a sporting goods store in Inglewood, near Los Angeles.

The trio worked on prison reform, then Atwood and Joseph Remiro reportedly started a romance. She vanished when Remiro was arrested Jan. 10 in the slaying of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

WOLFE

"Willie" Wolfe was chararacterized as an apolitical underachiever while a student at Mt. Hermon Academy in Northhampton, Mass.

"Willie would go out of his way not to break the rules. The whole year I roomed with him, I don't think he read one political book," said Nicholas Monjo, a Mt. Hermon schoolmate.

Later Wolfe attended UC Berkeley where his black studies course took him to Vacaville and to DeFreeze.

"He was constantly talking about Red China," said his brother John. "He was trying to look like Che Guevara."

Wolfe moved to the Maoistoriented "Peking House" commune in Berkeley, dropped out of school, then reportedly sold hot dogs.

SOLTYSIK

Patricia Soltysik came to Berkeley after high school at Goleta, Calif., where she conformed as an honor student. She became a militant feminist and took the name "Mizmoon" from a love poem written to her by another woman.

"Some people can live in Berkeley and come out of it unscathed," said her brother Fred Soltysik. "Others are consumed by it. Mizmoon was consumed by it."

In February 1972, she tossed away her cashmere sweaters for coveralls and started work as a janitor at the Berkeley Public Library. She worked on a photo essay on elderly San Francisco women and wrote letters to prisoners.

HALL

Friends say Miss Soltysik met and lived with "Candy" Hall. Miss Hall was the only surviving child of The Rev. George F. Hall, a pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in Lincolnwood, Ill.

She came to Berkeley in 1971 after social work in Minneapolis and got a job as a maintenance worker for the East Bay Regional Park District. She worked avidly but peacefully in the antiwar and women's liberation movements.

"She was really angered that she couldn't do something constructive in society," said a friend, Joyce Halverson.

Unusual museums preserve America

CITY OF MUSEUMS — This old-time country store is one of the exhibits in the Farmers' Museum in Cooperstown, N.Y. The old stores and houses on the grounds feature Early American handicrafts and kitchen equipment. Other museums in Cooperstown that offer a glimpse into the nation's past include the Carriage and Harness Museum, Fenimore House containing memorabilia of author James Fenimore Cooper, Indian Museum and the National Baseball Museum. NEW YORK (AP) — Where is the only existing monument to a boll weevil?

Where is the museum devoted to the industry of whiskey distillation?

Where is the one still-standing example of the estimated one billion sod houses built by homesteaders?

Where was the first pretzel bakery in the country?

The monument that honors an insect is in Enterprise, Ala; the Barton Museum of Whiskey History is in Bardstown, Ky.; the remaining sod house is in Cleo Springs, Okla.; and the bakery, which started operation in 1861 in Lititz, Pa., is now a museum that offers pretzel-baking demonstrations.

"There are three unusual museums in Florida exhibiting sunken treasure salvaged from wrecks. There are museums for dolls, clocks, musical instruments — almost any object has a history," adds Sylvia McNair, senior editor of travel guides for Rand McNally, who can come up with a sightseeing suggestion, no matter what your interest.

"We use to think from reading history books that military and political history was all that counted. But people's concept of what history includes is broadening," says Mrs. McNair, whose latest research and editing project is "Discover Historic America," a guide to sites, battlefields, homes, museums and shrines throughout the country.

WITH the Bicentennial approaching she sees increased consciousness of the need to preserve landmarks, restore buildings and save artifacts.

"But it's amazing how much has been done all along," she says. "In New England especially people have been aware of the necessity to preserve things since Colonial days. Maybe it's just part of the old Yankee thrift.

"Remmber that the Bicentennial concentrates on only the last 200 years of our history," she continues. "But in St. Augustine, Fla., for instance, you can go back 400 years and in Santa Fe., N.M., you can see traces of its history dating back to its founding in 1610."

The editor notes that the increasing national awareness of black history is resulting in more visitors to such places as Harriet Tubman's home in Auburn, N.Y.; the Frederick Douglas Institute of Negro Arts and History in Washington, D.C., and the Carver Museum in Tuskegee, Ala.

"Transportation played a tremendously important part in our history and many towns were founded when the railroad came in," she points out. "You can see that part of our past in railroad museums and there are other featuring trolleys, cars, stagecoaches, firefighting equipment, marine museums and of course now airplane and space exhibits.

"It's important to understand the lifestyle of different periods — to see a covered wagon and realize how much courage, strength and health pioneers needed to travel across the vast spaces to settle the West," she says. "It's a kind of inspiration to think that luxury is not the only thing to be sought after."

"Do some general reading about an area before visiting it, find out what people settled it, how they made a living — what particular kind of agriculture and industry there was," she advises. "Take time to read historical markers, go to museums learn how people lived in the past.

"It helps to bridge the generation gap for parents to become aware of the sweep of history., By seeing how different their life is from that of their grandparents, they will understand that their children's lifestyle will be different from their own."

Mrs. McNair, who is an inveterate traveler both on the job and off, especially enjoys visiting Presidents' birthplaces and homes when she is on vacation. "But I don't take a real vacation anymore," she admits. "I'm always researching whenever I travel."

Customer Pays Tribute To Mattress

After being put to 14 different uses over 25 years, a mattress "deserves a second chance."

"After 9,230 days and nights of being slept on, loved on, fought on, bounced on, sat upon, tossed on, sick on, laughed on, wept on, baby diapers changed on, clothes closets dumped on, furniture stacked on (during room painting), ironed on, dress and drape fabric cut on — they are beginning to tire and must be put to rest."

Understandably enough, the customer wanted to replace the veteran mattress with the same brand.

Spring Air Mattress Sets are available exclusively in this trading area at Holt-House of Furniture, 120 W. Court St., Washington C. H., Ohio.

War games in a bloody century

It has often been remarked that human beings are an odd sort. This ancient truism can be invoked to help account for the widespread love of war games. The reference is to the old-fashioned sort of war games which involve deploying toy soldiers in various tactical situations to see which side can win. It seems that this diversion is "more popular today than ever before."

The quote is from a knowledgeable source, Jack Scruby, whose Soldier Factory in Cambria, Calif., ships some 25,000 tin-lead soldiers monthly to buyers scattered about the world. Says he, further: "War gaming is the number one hobby in England, and it isn't far behind in the United States."

This, be it noted, toward the shank end of a century whose record for mass slaughter under the aegis of contending governments exceeds that of any other in all history. One might suppose that in such a century, after two world wars and Korea and Vietnam and a variety of lesser but no less vicious conflicts, the very idea of battle might cause universal revulsion.

Many do feel a profound revulsion, of course; perhaps a majority, though this is a dubious proposition. Yet the popularity of sending uniformed mannikins against one another on a board representing the bloody field of battle suggests that many may subconsciously think of war as a kind of glorious pastime.

This notion must not be pushed to fatuous extremes. Those who enjoy such play are not necessarily bloodthirsty. For some, war games may even provide a sort of catharsis involving rejection of the real thing.

Still, we find it rather disquieting that after all this century's agonizing conflict quite a lot of people take pleasure in simulating the death struggle of opposed armies.

THESE DAYS . . . by John Chamberlain

Blunders worse than crimes

The big, not to say the transcendent, mystery of the whole Watergate affair is why President Nixon and his Administration didn't conduct themselves or defend themselves with at least a smidgeon of intelligence.

All sorts of questions remain unanswered. Why, for example, the existence of the tapes in the first place?

Taping, as I was assured long ago by Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, who had been an Attorney General and therefore in a position to know, was done as far back as the Roosevelt Administration, and by some of the most sainted New Dealers. But you can be sure that no bigwig before Richard Nixon ever let the tape play on to record secret discussions involving matters that might bring discredit on those who knew the recorder was there.

Lyndon Johnson, if he had happened to discuss the Bobby Baker case or the "Landslide Lyndon" senatorial election which was won by a handful of late-reported and thoroughly questionable votes, assuredly would have switched off the button before indulging in or inviting certain comments.

Nixon knew all about the so-called Pumpkin Papers played in the Alger Hiss case. Why, then, did he authorize the recording of his own Pumpkin Papers?

A SECOND QUESTION is why didn't the White House stick to the national security justification for what it did? The Cubans who broke into Watergate did it for patriotic reasons.

In a world that has just watched the resignation of West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt because of a spy planted in his most intimate entourage, the theory that Fidel Castro was siming to bubvert the Democratic National Committee is certainly not far-fetched.

Granted that the Cubans and their recruiter, Howard Hunt, were doing something without benefit of legal police collaboration, the motive for the Watergate bugging was not an ignoble one. It was certainly several moral cuts above Daniel Ellsberg's decision to break his word about keeping the Pentagon Papers secret.

Somehow Nixon let the national security justification slide away from him. Why?

The country in the late Sixties and the early Seventies was the scene of violence that owed much to the writings of Chairman Mao and the example of that grand guerrilla of them all, Che Guevara.

As Thomas Charles Huston, no fool, explained it for White House benefit in his Huston Plan for penetrating organized pig-baiting and laboratory-burning groups, it was a reasonable assumption that wild card Communists such as the Trotskyites were trying to plant the first seeds of revolution.

Surely the White House had justification for worry. The attempt to frisk Ellsberg's psychiatrist of his papers was stupid, but, again, it was several moral cuts above Ellsberg's own leak of classified Pentagon documents.

Why, in view of the turbid state of the public mind in the last days of our Vietnam War participation, didn't the Nixon Administration create a backfire by issuing a White Paper on the rise and proliferation of the New Left in America?

Several historians — the names of Lewis Feuer and Edward J. Bacciocco, Jr. spring to mind — could have documented everything from the Berkeley Rebellion to the appearance (and disappearance) of the Weathermen to show the reason for White House trepidation about a possible drift into national paralysis.

ONE PROBABLE reason for Nixon's failure to defend himself is that he let a stuipid band of advertising account executives and fuzzy-cheeked legal striplings with no political experience push the intelligent Martin Andersons and Roger Freemans out of the White House.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman and John Dean had absolutely no feeling for the public relations requirements of politics. They acted like conspirators in an evil cause where there was actually no need to do so.

Nixon could have said Watergate and the Ellsberg break-in were motivated by the same concern for the nation's safety that Franklin D. Roosevelt showed when, with Earl Warren's blessing, he stuck the Japanese-American citizens in detention camps.

It is probably too late to urge national security considerations on impeachment-minded members of Congress. The momentum has been lost. But when the historians review this period in the 21st Century, they will marvel that an Administration could be so dumb.

Judge has tips for faster trials

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

CARROLLTON, Ohio (AP) — The lone common pleas court judge in rural Carroll County has some answers for his colleagues in cities plagued by backlogs of civil suits.

Judge Paul Perkins, 64, said his proposals go to the heart of the problem in larger common pleas courts—bad management.

"My feeling is that the real problem is the failure, refusal or inability of judges to do business-like, administrative work," he said. "In other words, it's a production problem.

After three years on the bench, Perkins said he feels urban judges could speed that flow by appointing a master commissioner to conduct pre-trial hearings in civil cases.

He said judges now handle all their own pre-trials hearings, but they need not. A master commissioner could handle the pre-trials, obtain early settlements and relieve judges of the burden, he said.

"You can't leave the responsibility of the pre-trial hearings up to the judges," Perkins said. "They have got to give the authority to the commissioner to conduct really tough pre-trials.

"If they did, they would clean up the backlog faster and they wouldn't need more judges."

But he asked, "Why can't the judges get together and appoint a master commissioner in charge of all pre-trials and give him the responsibility?"

He thought he knew the answer. In the larger counties, he said, "If you got one judge who doesn't want it, then you got all the judges who are not going to do it."

He added, "You got to remember, I don't have all the problems they have. I don't have to work with 38 other judges who are all independent."

Perkins had another idea that has worked well for him.

He said the proposal would remedy "the total disregard for jurors in the management of courts."

In personal injury cases, he said, "I set it for jury trial on a date certain. Then I order the counsel to exchange final offers on a settlement.

"If they don't get serious until the trial and then settle it while the jury is waiting, I assess the cost for the 30 prospective jurors against the parties."

Perkins said he can assess the cost against either the lawyers for the plaintiff or defendant or both.

"Some attorneys say I don't have the authority," he said. "I tell them: 'Take it to the court of appeals.'"

He added, "When my order finally soaked in and it became apparent that it wasn't just another piece of paper, the lawyers really got serious about settling cases."

Dear Abby:

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Here's the latest wrinkle in belly dancing debate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that belly dancing is a respected form of art. You're absolutely right. It's also marvelous exercise for toning up muscles and trimming off fat.

In our little town of Ashland, Ky. 50 of us are taking lessons in belly dancing at the YWCA. And we're considered part of the Bible belt.

ANITA HOWERTON

DEAR ANITA: Since belly dancing originated in the Middle East during Biblical times, it's entirely appropriate that it should be taught in the Bible belt.

Let's hear it from Suzanne Hunsucker, a reporter from the Coloradoan in Fort Collins, Colorado. She visited a belly dancing class sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Deaprtment because belly dancing had become a gut issue in that community, and she wanted to get the straight dope. She wrote:

"One middle-aged student said, 'There's nothing sexy about it. Anyone watching us sweat it out would hardly get aroused. It's exhausting physical exercise. At first it nearly killed me. I started using parts of my body I never knew I had. However, soon I got to know my body and began talking to my joints.'

The instructor said, 'I notice a real change in the women taking the class. They become much freer in their movements after a while. When they dance, they lift up their heads and smile.'

"Who knows", wrote the reporter, "with inhibitions being shed and bellies being strengthened, Fort Collins may someday be the belly dancing capital of the West."

Wait there's more: From New Orleans came a feature story published in the states-Items by Rosemary Ruiz a reporter who actually joined a belly dancing class to get some firsthand information about it. She wrote:

"Until now, belly dancing has always had a certain seedy aura about it, seldom suggesting anything more refined than a carnival hoochy koochy dance, but lately the dance has enjoyed a surge of popularity. I got my best friend and sister-in-law to enroll with me. We were relieved to sees ourselves duplicated in other students, ordinary co-eds and housewives ranging in age from 18 to 55. All quite sheepish about it.

My daughter thinks it's hilarious,' said one.

I told my husband I was taking ballet,' says another.

My husband is a school principal,' said Lucille V., 'so I'm futhuring my education.' She laughs, but comes back in five minutes to add quite soberly, 'Actually I also own Arabian horses and am very interested in the Arabic culture. Please put that in.'

I'll buy that.

DEAR ABBY: We in the dancing profession commend you for upholding the dignity of belly dancing. It's the name that so many people find offensive. The dance is beautiful when artistically performed. I wish they could change the name to Oriental dancing."

If you think it's easy-like the hula, just try to move the upper half of your body while keeping the lower half perfectly still. Then try to move the lower half of your body and keep the upper half still.

I'll bet you can't do it.

TARA FROM ISTANBUL

DEAR TARA: You're right. I tried and couldn't. But you gave me an idea. I think I'll take some lessons. (Privately, of course.)

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Public and commercial broadcasters are waiting with bated breaths, microphones and cameras to learn when the House impeachment hearings go public. But it's doubtful this will be the week.

The CBS, NBC and ABC television networks initially thought this Tuesday would be the day. Then they hoped for Thursday. Now they simply are waiting and making no forecasts.

But when the House hearings are opened to the public, they'll be offered in full or in part to the nation's 2,689 network or public radio stations and at least 844 public or network-affiliated TV stations.

The networks, serving a total of 610 commercial TV stations, say they'll still rotate live coverage responsibility among themselves, with ABC covering the first day, CBS the second and NBC the third.

In addition, CBS-TV says when developments warrant, it will air half-hour or hour-long summary reports at 11:30 p.m. EDT on those days it hasn't the primary live coverage responsibility.

NBC-TV says it's considering a similar approach but nothing is definite yet. ABC-TV says it has tentative plans for primetime summary reports when it feels hearing developments warrant them.

The Public Broadcasting Service, serving 234 TV stations, says it won't go "live," but will videotape each day's public hearings in full and offer it the same night at 8 p.m. EDT.

On the radio side, only CBS with 245 stations, and the National Public Radio system, with 164 outlets, say they'll carry the hearings live. CBS will interrupt its coverage for its regular hourly news broadcasts.

NBC, serving 230 radio stations, and ABC, serving 1,400, both say they'll offer brief special reports during the day, but won't go live except when they feel circumstanced demand it.

NBC says it'll also offer a special 3½-minute wrapup on the hearings at 5:45 p.m. EDT and again an hour later if necessary.

The Mutual Broadcasting System says it won't offer live coverage, opting to put hearing developments in its regular news feeds to its 650 affiliates.

It says it'll also offer them a nine-minute special hearings report at 2:15 p.m. EDT and a 14-minute report at 5:35 p.m. EDT.

Washington Report

By REP. WILLIAM H. HARSHA

In spite of all its pontificating about congressional reform, when the Democratic majority of Congress was finally confronted with a viable reform proposal for the archaic and cumbersome House committee system, it voted overwhelmingly to send these badly needed changes to yet another committee for further study.

Most Washington watchers know what that means: this action is sure to weaken and quite possibly kill the congressionaly reform package for at least another year.

It has been some 28 years since there was a major overhaul of the House committee system, and that reform in 1946 was one of the first changes at all since Congress convened in 1789.

But Congress has come a long way in nearly three decades and the committees as structured then are not exactly geared to deal in the most effective manner with the more recent issues of this decade such as environmental protection, energy conservation and medical insurance.

Today, there are no less than 184 separate committees and subcommittees in the House. Many of them have overlapping responsibilities and all of them compete heavily for the precious legislative time of the Congressmen.

BASICALLY, the Bolling Committee (as it has been termed for its chairman) proposed that members generally have only one committee assignment as opposed to the two delegated to most now. This would both foster expertise among the members and also minimize schedule conflicts.

More often than not under the current system, a congressman on two committees finds his schedule full of different subcommittee meetings set for the same time, making it impossible for him to contribute effectively to the legislative matters considered in both.

Another feature, and probably the most controversial, was the Bolling Committee's recommendation that some committees be abolished or their workload lessened and that other new ones be created. The most vocal in opposing these suggestions which have much merit were those with the most seniority and power to lose.

For example, the Education and Labor Committee would be split into two separate committees. Considering the increasing need for legislative involvement in both of these important areas and the often highly complex nature of the issues considered, this is a rather logical decision. Had these reforms been in effect over the last few years, it might not have taken three years to have a minimum wage bill enacted, nor would Congress be struggling at the eleventh hour to pass a new federal aid to education bill before the end of the fiscal year.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE is the powerful Ways and Means Committee. It was originally meant to handle tax legislation, but it now controls about 20 per cent of all bills introduced in the House.

This includes exclusive control over all trade and employment compensation.

Some of these matters would be shifted to other committees for the sake of ensuring the most effective legislative process to deal with these vital domestic issues.

The House Public Works Committee, on which I serve as ranking minority member, would not escape this reform. No longer would it deal with water pollution control measures. That would be included in a new, badly needed Committee on Energy and Environment.

Having spent almost 14 years studying this matter and writing the strongest and most workable legislation to date on it, I would sorely miss the opportunity to deal directly on a committee with water pollution control legislation. However, in losing responsibility for this matter, the Public Works Committee would gain jurisdiction over all transportation matters including highway, air and rail, and I think this type of consolidation could only lead to a more comprehensive and better organized approach to the country's mobility problems.

OTHER REFORMS would give the minority party in Congress more equitable representation in staff assistance and establish a system of committee membership and leadership selection and budget authorizations prior to the beginning of a new Congress. Work has been traditionally held up for weeks as it stands now until these matters are first decided by the party caucuses and then by the full House.

These and other reforms would have strengthened the legislative process and made it more responsive to the needs of the public. From the likes of the vote by the Democratic Caucus, however, the only thing on their minds was making an outdated and overloaded committee system more responsive to the needs of its power hungry chairmen.

The shelving of the reform proposals was a disheartening and disgusting defeat for the American public and the good of its legislative process.

Sowle resignation fought by board

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio University Board of Trustees say they will ask university president Dr. Claude R. Sowle to reconsider his decision to resign.

The board in a statement issued Sunday night said Dr. Sowle had its full support, and asked him to reconsider.

Sowle, in a surprise announcement Sunday, told trustees Chairman William Morris that "the mindless destructive events of the past week have convinced me that I should no longer ask myself and my family to serve the university under such insane conditions.

"Universities are among the most fragile institutions in our society," Sowle said. "It is unfortunate that in such a setting, the dedicated selfless efforts of so many can be nullified by the senseless acts of so few."

The last nine days have been repeated instances of violence or disruption on the OU campus.

Two nights of rioting in Athens city streets May 11 and 12 resulted in 38 arrests, injuries to both students and police, looted shops and smashed windows.

The weekend incidents were followed by a confrontation Tuesday between Sowle and a group of black students on the OU campus. The students, who said they were protesting the lack of minority oriented entertainment and academic programs, refused to listen to him in a meeting, however, the president said.

Sowle said as he left the meeting he was "physically abused with shoving and pushing," and said it was the worst abuse he had taken since becoming president.

On Wednesday, students gave him a list of six demands. On Thursday, they followed with a list of 51 demands, which they said had to be fulfilled within 24 hours and which included lowering of university fees, resignation of some top administrators and a democratically elected board of regents.

"It is shocking that, in a university particularly, such a strong and talented person can be driven to the point that he feels compelled to resign," Culbert said.

Edward Tenson, vice president for academic affairs, said the office of university president "has become a magnet for abuse, and attack, and demands and demands and demands.

"Those of us who have worked with him closely have been wondering for a long time how he takes it," Tenson said.

Sowle, a former dean of the University of Cincinnati law school, became OU president on Aug. 1, 1969. His resignation is effective this summer.

Issue sanctions against district

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Education Association has issued sanctions against the Mentor School District in a local teachers' dispute.

The OEA accused the board of bad faith negotiating and of cutting back educational programs and teaching staffs.

The sanctions serve to notify teachers associations across the state that Mentor is an "undesirable place to teach," the OEA said in a statement issued Saturday.

Eagles Auxiliary in CARE program

Eagles Auxiliary 423 has joined Eagle orginizations nationwide in an overseas aid program in cooperation with CARE, the international aid agency.

The Faternal Order of Eagles, with program headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis., has announced that a complex of vocational training workshops is being constructed in Nicaragua's earthquake rehibilitation area.

Under a partnership agreement between CARE and the Nicaraguan Ministry of Education, Fraternal Order of Eagles funds are being used to provide 20 to 30 workshops for machine, foundry, carpentry, masonry and sheetmetal training.

Esther McDaniel, president of the local Eagles Auxiliary chapter, said that the Eagles' plan for helping young people abroad consisted of providing essential training in crafts and survival skills.

The endeavor is consistent with a tradition of two decades in which the Eagles have established "Eagle House" CARE centers throughout the free world. The Nicaragua enterprise, the 27th in the series, will be part of the largest vocational training complex in Central America.

Miss Slavens, chalk artist, entertains at M-D dinner

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet of First Baptist Church was held Saturday evening in the social room of the church. The theme of the banquet was "Mother-A Portrait of Love" and it was sponsored by the board of deaconesses.

The tables were decorated with bowls of beautiful spring flowers with pink and blue candles in cyrstal holders at each end of the tables. Favors were small bottles of cologne and small bars of soap.

Miss Helen Slavens, a talented chalk artist, made several drawings and narrated them in a most interesting manner.

Dinner was prepared by the social committee of the church, of which Mrs. Harold DeWeese was chairman, and served by the Rev. Ralph Wolford, pastor, and the deacons. Mrs. John Baker gave the invocation. Following the meal, Mrs. Charles Hurtt, chairman of the board of deaconesses, extended greetings to all present, and read the poem, "Mother's Checkbook". She then asked each mother or daughter to introduce herself and guests. Mrs. Aaron Shipley sang three numbers and accompanied herself on the guitar.

Mrs. Chester Howell and her daughter, Starr, gave the welcome on behalf of the mothers and daughters. A humerous skit narrated by Mrs. Howell featured several little girls who modeled their mother's hats. Mrs. James Vess sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Yerian at the piano.

Special recognition was given to the oldest and youngest mothers present, to the mothers having the most children, one who traveled the greatest distance, and to Mrs. DeWeese who supervised the planning of the dinner. All these ladies were presented with flower arrangements. Mrs. Ralph Wolford gave the benediction.

Sift together the flour, baking powder, baking soda and salt.

Jobless vet wants leg amputated

JUPITER, Fla. (AP) — A young Vietnam veteran who seeks a leg amputation that doctors won't give him is broke and jobless and considering going to jail so his family can get welfare payments.

Don Dagenhart, 22, says constant pain from a knee injury incurred in a Navy football game four years ago makes it impossible for him to hold a job. He wants an artificial limb, but a Veteran's Administration panel of three doctors says he should keep his leg.

Broke and jobless, Dagenhart faces eviction from his apartment. His telephone has been disconnected and even though his VA disability payments have been raised to $77 a month he has been forced to sell furniture to get money to support his wife Anne and their two-year-old son Craig.

"We got $10 for the baby's crib," says Mrs. Dagenhart, who cannot work because she suffers from phlebitis, an inflammation of the veins. "We're trying to hang on to the high chair so Craig will have a place to eat, but I don't know how long we can."

State welfare offers only token payment because Dagenhart is a veteran. Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., has been asked to get him a 100 per cent disability allowance, but that will take time.

"We've been told to pay the back rent or get out," Dagenhart says. "The landlord wants money and I can't blame him."

He says if the landlord evicts him, "then I'll just have to do something to get thrown in jail. Then the welfare people will have to do something to help my wife and son. That's the important thing right now."

Dagenhart's disability payments were increased from $49 a month to $57 a month a year ago when he was recovering from two exploratory operations. But they were reduced to $49 again six months later.

He had five knee operations before his discharge in 1971, and early this year, the VA medical panel in Miami told Dagenhart he either could have the knee fused and the nerves killed; keep the knee and wear a leg brace, or amputate the leg and get an artificial one.

But after a re-examination in April, the panel eliminated amputation as an alternative and advised that he wear a leg brace.

Dr. Donald Peerson, who has operated on Dagenhart's leg, says, "I don't think he fully realizes the full implications of an above-the-knee amputation. The full leg brace would help him and I think, with careful planning, something could be done to repair the knee."

To that Dagenhart responds: "I want this over with. I've already had seven operations and the knee is just as bad off as when it was crushed. I've made up my mind I want it cut off."

Marsh challenges King leadership

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Milan Marsh, state Carpenter's union leader, was expected to announce for the presidency of the Ohio AFL-CIO today, challenging the 10-year reign of Frank King.

Marsh, of Youngstown, had scheduled a 9 a.m. news conference in Cleveland.

The convention is expected to bring to a head a power struggle that has continued for several months and involved the governor's office.

Gov. John J. Gilligan's executive assistant, Phillip R. Moots, denies that the governor's office is working for the ouster of Frank W. King as state AFL-CIO president.

But James N. Iafelice of Cleveland, president of the International Association of Machinists District 54 and a staunch supporter of King, charges angrily that Gilligan is interfering in union politics.

"In the whole history of labor," Iafelice said recently, "I don't recall another Ohio governor who interfered so much in the affairs of the union."

Leading the faction opposing King is Warren J. Smith, AFL-CIO state secretary-treasurer, who is running for re-election. Smith has circulated a 50-page statement opposing King's leadership.

Floyd Chapman of Massillon says he is backed by King and will oppose Smith for secretary-treasurer.

Chapman, financial secretary for United Steel Workers Local 1124, said Sunday he is backed "100 per cent" by King and will be nominated from the convention floor Thursday.

"It's time for a change," he declared.

Reports are that King will face a re-election challenge from either Milan March of Youngstown, a state Carpenters' union official, or William Sheehan, head of Cincinnati's AFL-CIO.

King said all the challenges still are unofficial.

Smith admits that friction between King, who is a former leader in the Ohio Senate, and Gilligan is part of the dispute but denies that the governor is involved in the anti-King movement.

"I have never talked to the governor about it," Smith said. "I don't think it would make a difference to the governor which man won. The labor movement is totally in support of the governor, no matter who is president."

Moots said the governor's office is keeping its hands off the AFL-CIO convention.

But he said there "has been a feeling among labor guys for some time that Frank (King) is following his own purposes and deals instead of representing the AFL-CIO."

He added that State Sen. Anthony Calabrese, who is the Senate Democratic leader, "has been very careful to do what Frank wants.

"The question asked by some of the members is whether Frank has been giving the kind of leadership to the AFL-CIO that it needs and wants," the governor's aide said.

"I think he always felt he is still in the Senate instead of being president of the AFL-CIO, and some of the members and delegates apparently resent this."

Drivers obey low speed limit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio drivers are obeying the 55 miles per hour highway speed limit better than they did the higher speed limit, says state Highway Patrol Supt. Col. Robert Chiaramonte.

Chiaramonte said patrol surveys showed an average speed of 56.7 m.p.h. for cars and 54.9 m.p.h. for trucks.

Furthermore, he said, highway patrol records showed a six per cent reduction in highway accidents for the first four months of the year.

Central Europeans may be today's greatest handshakers. Many office and factory workers customarily shake the hands of all fellow employes daily both on arriving for the job and departing for home.

Police study shows women doing well on D.C. force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of the men in blue don't agree, but women have joined Washington's finest with flying colors, says the Police Foundation.

A survey which compared the performance of 86 women patrol officers with that of 86 men showed "generally similar" results, the foundation said Sunday.

The report said that "women made fewer arrests and gave fewer traffic citations," but added it was not clear whether that was because they were too easy or simply that men are too tough.

It was clear, however, that many of the male officers aren't enthused about the presence of their women counterparts.

Typical of interviews, said the foundation, were these remarks:

"Most women panic easily ... Women are not aggressive and tend to lay back and act as a ride-along or report taker .... There aren't too many females who can handle themselves or situations when things get rough .... They belong in an office.

There were a few positive appraisals.

"I have found female officers to be more intelligent .... less quick to anger .... I feel the intelligence and commitment of several female officers to be in refreshing contrast to the crybaby attitude of many males."

Patrick V. Murphy, president of the private nonprofit foundation, said the findings "will be useful for police agencies nationwide" as they attempt to comply with federal law requiring equal employment opportunities for women.

In recent lawsuits, the Justice Department has accused several police departments of discriminating against women.

Northern U.S. cool, wet

By The Associated Press

The northern half of the nation was cool and wet today, while much of the southern half was hot and humid.

Snow and rain was scattered through the Rocky Mountains and Montana stockmen were warned to protect their livestock from the cold.

Thunderstorms spread from New Mexico through Georgia and the Carolinas.

A man died Sunday when his auto was swept into a rainswollen creek near Decatur, Ill., where almost six inches of rain fell within 24 hours. But no one was injured when a bus was washed off a highway.

Flash floods flooded the Decatur sewage plant and closed roads into the city for several hours.

The Yukon River is navigable from Whitehorse to the Bering Sea, a distance of over 2,000 miles. The river winds through Yukon and Alaska and is completely ice free from about June 10 until Oct. 5.

East Liverpool water short

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)— Schools suspended classes and at least one industry ceased operations today because of a water shortage in this Ohio River city.

The problem began Friday night when the water intake pier in the river became clogged and no more water could be pumped into the city's reservoirs.

Water Supt. Rodney Stull said the three reservoirs were in danger of running dry before the intake could be cleared. He said divers would be sent down to try to remove the debris.

Meanwhile, Mayor Norman Bucher urged the city's more than 22,000 residents to conserve water.

Hall China Pottery, one of the city's biggest industries, closed today and classes were suspended at the nine public and Catholic schools in the city.

Stull said the city's largest reservoir, which normally holds about five million gallons of water, was down to about half a million gallons and the water supply also was down in the other reservoirs.

Cigarette proves lethal hazard

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — What happened to Mary Jo Place is beyond the health hazards warned of on cigarette packages.

Mrs. Place took a pistol from a drawer and went to investigate during the night when she thought she heard a prowler. Finding nothing unusual, she put the pistol on a nightstand and went back to bed.

Sunday morning she said she awoke, took out a cigarette, reached to the nightstand for the pistol-shaped lighter she keeps there and shot herself in the left hand.

Giscard D'Estaing posts narrow win in French election

PARIS (AP) — Conservative Valery Giscard d'Estaing, for years the strict finance minister in France's Gaullist governments, has become the republic's 20th president in an election that could reduce friction between Paris and Washington.

Latest official figures gave Giscard d'Estaing a lead of only 371,814 votes out of more than 26 million cast, more than 87 per cent of the registered voters in the largest turnout ever in a French election.

Interior Minister Jacques Chirac declared Giscard d'Estaing elected Sunday night with 50.71 per cent of the vote, 1.5 per cent more than that Socialist Francois Mitterand received.

Foreign policy played almost no role in the free-wheeling, six-week election campaign.

But the first foreign notable to congratulate the new president was President Nixon in a protocol-breaking personal telephone call, which French newspapers viewed as an omen of an easing in prickly relations between the two nations.

Giscard d'Estaing has promised to make technical suggestions soon on European monetary problems and work towards eventual European unity in 1980.

The election mainly on France's severe economic problems, and also reflected apparent voter discontent with 16 years of Gaullist rule that ended with the death on April 2 of President Georges Pompidou. Giscard d'Estaing and Mitterrand eliminated the official Gaullist candidate, Jacques Chaban-Delmas, in balloting May 5.

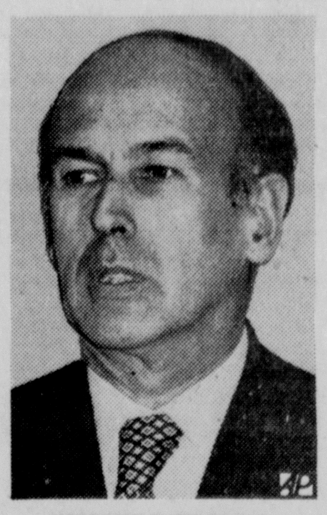
Giscard d'Estaing still will have to rely on what now appears to be a disproportionately large Gaullist bloc in the lower house of the National Assembly to support his government.

The 48-year-old presidentelect heads the Independent Republican party, junior partner of the Gaullists in the governing coalition since Gen. Charles de Gaulle founded the Fifth Republic and became its president in 1958.

He promised "change without risk" during the campaign and pledged to newsmen Sunday, while awaiting vote tabulations, that his government would provide startling changes.

Constitutionally, the formal proclamation of his election can take place at any time in the next 10 days. It is expected late this week, after which Giscard d'Estaing will name his prime minister to replace the caretaker prime minister, Pierre Messmer.

As the tight result was announced, leaders of all groups which supported



GISCARD D'ESTAING

Giscard d'Estaing warned that he must take into account that almost one Frenchman in two voted for the Socialist candidate, who had promised sweeping reforms and Communists in the government.

Opposition figures made a point of stressing their acceptance of the democratic process in conceding Giscard's victory.

Leftist leaders noted that Mitterarand drew converts to their cause, winning 4 per cent more votes than the total leftist vote in the first round.

Unions and extreme leftists indicated, however, that their patience would be very limited. Georges Seguy, Communist head of the largest union group, said his organization was ready to negotiate with government and management for "essential social demands" but that if these were not met "union action will force them to be."

Nation's 'duck cops' become concerned with big crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The old Duck Cop of the Fish and Wildlife Service is turning into a sort of environmental G-Man.

Instead of big heroin or 10-most-wanted busts, the big case around the service's Law Enforcement Division is likely to be seizure of a cheetah-fur coat or a shipment of hawksbill turtle shell hair clips.

That's because the main beat for the division's 220 special agents is policing the endangered species list—and agents believe their beat is starting to involve organized crime.

A single eagle tail feather is worth $50. A tiger skin coat recently was valued at $80,000. A pair of Nile crocodile shoes is worth $125, and a live perigrine falcon can be worth $10,000 to a falconry buff, the service says.

The division's stepped-up effort, says Director Clark Bavan, "has been necessary in part to focus on the large-scale traffickers and smugglers of wildlife."

The attraction for organized crime—besides the money —is the lesser risk, along with the comparatively light penalties Congress provided in its endangered species laws, Bertram Falbaum, division deputy director, says.

"If you can get $50,000, $100,000, $200,000, dealing in misdemeanor instead of felony crimes, why not?" says Falbaum. "We're convinced organized crime is involved."

To get on with its new responsibilities, the division is recruiting a mix of ex-FBI, Customs Bureau, police and military intelligence men. Falbaum used to run Customs' Operation Intercept against narctics traffic on the West Coast.

In the old days, the division was heavy with biologists and game warden-types who banded ducks and stalked hunters who shot more than their limit— thus the tag, Duck Cops.

But in recent years Congress has tightened up several species protection laws and added new ones, giving the added enforcement tasks to the division.

So far the service has confiscated goods worth $2 million by its estimate. The haul includes one stuffed Andean condor, 20,000 cans of sperm whale meat and 1,200 pairs of Nile crocodile shoes. Some 1,400 live alligator-like caimans are cooling it in a zoo until a division case against their shippers is settled.

Weekend gun show crowd tops 1,800

More than 1,800 persons attended the Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association May gun show at the Fayette County Fairground Saturday and Sunday.

Kenneth Craig, association president, said a total of 1,774 parked on the Fairground facilities for the gun show, but that parking was hampered due to heavy rains which hit the Fayette County area Friday night.

There were nearly 600 exhibitors, according to Craig.

A Washington C.H. man won the competition for the May show. The competition was for the best 1886 model Winchester rifle.

Three larcenies were reported to the Fayette County Sheriff's Department during the gun show.

Deputies are presently investigating a report of a theft in which a metal box was stolen from a van owned by Donald P. DeVore, of Columbus, about 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Devore told deputies the metal box contained about 500 pieces of "broken bank notes all of which were dated before 1864. All the articles were in plastic envelopes. He said the articles have no face value, but an unestimated collector's value.

A box owned by Chet Blayney, of Columbus, was stolen from beneath a display table located in the sheep barn about 10 p.m. Saturday, sheriff's deputies reported. The box contained about $20 worth of German badges, pins and war medals.

Valuable glass articles were also stolen from beneath a display table in the sheep barn sometime Saturday. Deputies said the articles, valued at $360, were owned by Richard Clear, of Dayton.

The next gun show will be held June 22-23, Craig said.

Entertainer Arthur Godfrey, a friend of Rickenbacker, praised "Rick" as a life-long advocate of American air strength.

Rickenbacker, born in Columbus Oct. 8, 1890, died July 21 in Zurich, Switzerland, at the age of 82.

Handstand by youth brings fall, death

Police said the boy tried a handstand today on a window ledge at his school. He fell 37 feet to the ground and died three hours later in a hospital.

Soviet crop plantings progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fears a month ago that the Soviet Union was far behind in planting of spring crops seem to have dissipated, according to a new analysis published today by the Agriculture Department.

As of May 6, the report said, Soviet farmers had planted 156.4 million acres of spring crops, only about one week behind the "excellent progress" a year earlier when 1973 planting was under way.

Roger S. Euler, who specializes in Communist-area agriculture for the department's Economic Research Service, called the new report encouraging.

"It's an improving situation as far as planting in the Soviet Union is concerned," Euler told a reporter. "As we said last month, it was quite early then to be making predictions."

In April, the Soviet press raised questions about crop planting for 1974 harvests and said poor weather and inefficiency on farms were contributing to the delay.

At that time, only 41.6 million acres had been planted, compared with 107.2 million on the same date, April 22, a year earlier. In today's report, Soviet farmers were shown to have narrowed the gap sharply with the 156.4 million acres planted on May 6, compared with 199.6 million a year earlier.

"These comparisons suggest that 1974 seeding progress thus far may be near normal," the report said. "That is, progress in 1972 and 1973, but particularly in 1973, was unusually rapid because of favorable weather, and the larger than normal amount of seeding was due to reduced winter grain areas."

A Jamestown man was injured when he was "mugged" while leaving a Jeffersonville bar early Sunday morning, the Sheriff's Department reports.

Officers said Eddie Leon Dailey, 28, was "jumped" by two unidentified men, while walking through an alley near the Pub Bar.

The incident occurred at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Firebomb linked to Cincy strike

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — No one was injured and damage slight when a small firebomb exploded Sunday night at one of the four Cincinnati theaters being picketed over a wage dispute.

The incendiary device burst into flames at the Ambassador Theater, police said. Projectionists who crossed picket lines earlier in the day were threatened by picketers, according to police.

The strike was called by four members of the Cincinnati chapter of the International Association of Motion Picture Operators. They seek a $5 a day pay hike.

Mideast peace details ironed out

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Details of a general agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights began trickling out today as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived for discussions with Syrian leaders to overcome the few remaining obstacles.

A senior American official said a buffer zone separating the two armies will vary in depth from less than half a mile to a little over one mile.

According to this official, Israel has agreed to permit Syrian policemen to re-enter towns and villages within the demilitarized zone along with Syrian civilians.

Newsmen also were told on the one-hour flight from Jerusalem that verification of the thinning out of armor immediately behind the disengagement lines would not cause a problem because the distances involved are not great.

Now in the 22nd day of his marathon peace mission, Kissinger brought to Damascus Israel's approval of his proposals to separate the opposing forces, which the Israeli negotiating team gave Sunday.

With agreement on the troublesome question of a separation line, the focus of negotiations now is expected to shift toward such problems as the composition of a United Nations contingent to man a buffer zone between the opposing forces, the thinning out of firepower and an exchange of war prisoners.

Kissinger said he expected to remain in the Middle East at least until Friday, shuttling almost daily between the two countries. He scheduled his eighth session today with Syrian President Hafez Assad and Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam in Damascus.

He returns to Jerusalem in the evening to meet with Premier Golda Meir and other Israeli leaders.

"You can assume this will be the pattern" over the next few days, said Robert Anderson, a State Department spokesman.

Informed sources said the Kissinger compromise centered on U.N. control of the peak of Mt. Hermon, with Israeli and Syrian units maintaining positions along the slopes. It also was said to include the return of the city of Quneitra to Syrian civilian authority and Israeli withdrawal from three abandoned Arab villages in the Quneitra area, which is just behind the cease-fire lines drawn after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The sources said that under the plan, the United States would help guard against violations by inspecting Israeli and Syrian troop movements and equipment in the contested region.

Kissinger discussed the disengagement details and related problems with Mrs. Meir and other members of the Israei negotiating team for three hours Sunday. The cabinet met earlier.

The usually well-informed Israeli newspaper Haaretz said Israel's military leaders were insisting that artillery be limited to medium-range guns on either side of the proposed buffer zone. The paper said this would prevent Jewish settlements from being shelled over the heads of U.N. troops.

President needs successes to build image, Ford says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says that if moves to impeach President Nixon are defeated, the President then would need successes in foreign and domestic policy to recover lost public support.

"I think if the President and Henry Kissinger are successful in the Middle East ... and I think the prospects are fairly encouraging, I think that would be most helpful," Ford said in an interview with The Associated Press.

He said the public's views "move back and forth very quickly and there still is no better issue for any President than peace, particularly if they have the impression that he is the principal architect of it."

Dramatic success in domestic issues would be more difficult "because you don't turn a spigot and end inflation," said the vice president.

But, he added, "If the economy stays strong, if unemployment doesn't go up, if people are feeling happier about their economic prospects, I think that would help, but not as dramatically as something involving peace."

Ford said he thinks the odds are about even that the House Judiciary Committee will vote to impeach the President. But he said he still believes the House will reject an impeachment resolution.

Ford said April 15, 1970, that "an impeachable offense is whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers it to be at a given moment in history."

At the time, Ford was Republican leader of the House and was pushing for the impeachment of Supreme Court Associate Justice William O. Douglas.

Ford advocated then that "a higher standard is expected of federal judges than of any other 'civil officers' of the United States...."

As for the allegations against President Nixon, Ford said "the weight of the evidence overwhelmingly indicates to me the President neither knew of the Watergate break-in (and) ... he had no knowledge of the cover-up until Dean told him on March 21.

"Now you can take certain excerpts and I guess a skillful lawyer could build a case. But if you take all of the evidence, in my judgment, the overwhelming weight of the evidence is in favor of the President."

Paper now made from corn starch

CHICAGO (AP) — A new method for making paper from corn starch was recently reported in Prairie Farmer, one of the nation's leading rural magazines.

The magazine says chemists at the USDA Northern Regional laboratory in Peoria Ill., have developed the corn starch derivative as a stable ready-to-use liquid. Paper made from this particular type of starch can be recycled, thus conserving timber and reducing cost.

Street, road work on week's agenda

A number of projects have been scheduled this week by city street, state highway and county road work crews.

Members of the city street department will be restriping Washington Avenue, installing a sewer line on Jupiter Street and clearing debris from Friday night's thunderstorm in addition to the usual mowing chores, according to Bill Duncan, general foreman.

Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent of the Ohio Department of Transportation garage in Fayette County, said the state highway department crews will be mowing along guardrails, repairing a backhoe in preparation for ditching projects on I-71 and U.S. 35-S, crack-sealing on Ohio 734, east of Jeffersonville and U.S. 35-S, dispatching trash crews to roadside parks and repairing the median strip and shoulder on I-71 damaged by winter automobile accidents.

LATER this week, Fitzpatric said the state highway department workers will be preparing for the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

The state highway crews will be manning a service patrol starting Friday night on I-71 and assisting with the establishment of coffee break stops at parks along the interstate highway.

Charles P. Wagner, Fayette County engineer, said county road workmen will be clearing debris from Friday night's storm, patching York Road in Perry Township and Cook-Yankeetown Road in Madison Township and continuing a drainage project on the Washington-Waterloo Road.

Increases noted in jobless aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Increases were recorded last month in the number of cases of aid for families with unemployed fathers, the Ohio Department of Welfare reports.

Charles Bates, the agency's director, said there were 315 more persons in the category in April than in the previous month.

At the same time, the agency reported a continuing downtrend in the number of Aid to Dependent Children recipients.

Bates said there were 497,173 AC recipients in April 2,226 less than in March.

The decreasing trend began in December, Bates said, and since then 6,565 cases have been dropped.

Divine power heals, Science speaker says

"There is a divine power that supports and heals mankind," was the theme of a lecture given here Sunday by Charles W. Ferris, C.S.B., of Minneapolis.

"There seems to be a lot going on in the world," Ferris said, "that refutes the existence of this good power called God. But the life and beauty and goodness we do see is evidence of such a creative supporting power, that is, evidence of God. And as we study to perceive what He really is, we begin to experience His power in our lives."

Ferris, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, spoke under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist in the church edifice at 504 E. Temple St. He was introduced by Mildred Howell, First Reader.

Soviet activist faces auto trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet Jewish activist faces trial in Moscow for allegedly running down the daughter of a Soviet official, although hospital records disclosed here say the girl jumped in front of his car in a suicide attempt.

A spokesman for the Union of Councils for Soviet Jews said the case illustrates a pattern of Soviet authorities bringing "trumped-up" criminal charges against dissidents, apparently to avoid adverse Western reaction to political trials.

Photographic copies of the hospital documents, which the Washington-based organization said it obtained from Soviet dissident sources, were made available to The Associated Press.

Charged in the incident is Victor Polsky, 44, an engineer-physicist who has been refused permission to emigrate to Israel because Soviet authorities said he had access to secret information when he headed a laboratory developing X-ray equipment.

Polsky has signed petitions, has been arrested for participating in demonstrations and has led protest delegations to Soviet officials, the Jewish group said.

"I think if he goes to trial his chances of being acquitted or even getting a light sentence are very slim," said Louis Rosenblum, who visited Polsky three weeks ago in Moscow and learned of the indictment against him through overseas telephone contact.

The investigation into Polsky's case was to be completed by today. His trial was expected to follow shortly.

Polsky could get up to three years in prison if convicted of running down 19-year-old Tatyana Alexandrovna Zhukova, an employe of the Communist party committee for the Bauman district of Moscow.

The girl's father works for the Soviet Interior Ministry, which oversees granting of exit visas to Jews, while her mother is employed by the Communist party's city committee, Rosenblum said.

According to dissident sources, immediately following the nighttime accident March 25, both the girl and her parents, with whom she had been walking, told a policeman that Polsky was not at fault.

County school board to act on personnel items

Personnel matters will top the agenda for members of the Fayette County Board of Education at the regular semi-monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the board will be re-employing non-certificated personnel such as custodians, school bus drivers, cooks and secretaries; offering supplemental contracts for coaching positions, head teachers and counselors, and re-employing the school's psychologist and speech and hearing therapist.

Foster said board members will be approving a list of candidates for graduation ceremonies at Miami Trace High School, reviewing a proposed dress code for high school students, establish a date for the opening of bids for new school buses and hear requests for attendance at professional meetings in addition to handling routine and miscellaneous items.

Ohio could get job training cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Department of Labor reports Ohio could get $64.4 million in job training money if Congress approves recommendations from the agency's head, Peter J. Brennan.

Brennan said in a statement that Ohio would get $58.2 million for fiscal 1975 for classroom and on-the-job work training, job counseling and placement.

The state would get another $6.2 million for public service jobs in areas of high unemployment, he said.

Brennan said the Ohio money is part of $1.5 billion recommended by the labor department for release to the 50 states and 350 local governments.

Controversy continues in time trials

A. J. Foyt takes Indy pole spot

Sports

Monday, May 20, 1974

Washington C. H. (O.) Record-Herald - Page 12

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt is on the pole, the field is completed and all appears ready for Sunday's 58th running of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race ... but it might not be so.

Saturday, Foyt sat and watched 11 futile efforts to overtake his qualifying speed of 191.632 miles per hour, set May at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The 39-year-old Texan will be a strong sentimental favorite to win at Indy for an unprecedented fourth time.

Saturday's final session of time trials was marred by a rain delay of three hours and 37 minutes, but the final 18 spots in the starting field were filled and the day's two slowest cars were bumped from the lineup.

Action also developed after 6 p.m. qualifications ended. The Speedway reportedly was considering a proposal that an unprecedented 12th row of three cars be added to the starting lineup and the protesting group was considering legal action if a compromise was not worked out.

After the trials closed, owners, drivers and team representatives from nine of 11 cars waiting in line to qualify rushed Speedway officials and demanded a chance to take their four-lap, 10-mile trials runs.

A protest was filed with Speedway stewards on bealf of the nine cars and was rejected. The protesting group said the Speedway's entry form promised each driver at least one chance to qualify and they said they had been denied that.

Speedway officials said the rules had been adhered to, and that reopening qualifications would not be fair to the 33 drivers who had qualified and the two knocked from the lineup by faster drivers.

Then, the protesting group was told by Speedway officials the matter could be reconsidered if they could get signed affidavits from a representative of each of the cars in the starting field and the two alternates which would free the Speedway from possible legal action if trials were resumed.

At the request of the parties involved, the deadline for getting those affidavits to Speedway officials was extended from 11 a.m. Sunday to noon today.

By Sunday afternoon, the group—now down to six cars— said it had 13 signed affidavits and verbal agreement from a representative of each of the 33 starters except the slowest driver in the field, rookie Larry Cannon.

Cannon, who missed out under similar circumstances last year, said he would not sign. But the protesting group remained hopeful.

Wright Hugus Jr., an attorney and an associate in one of the racing teams involved, then took a proposal to Speedway Vice President Joe Cloutier that would add a 12th row to the field.

Under the proposal, the two alternate cars—driven by Jigger Sirois and Denny Zimmerman—automatically would be put in the 12th row and the other spot would go up for grabs among the six entries Hugus represented.

Hugus said that if an agreement could not be reached, "at 12:01, we could go to the federal district court for an injunction against the race. We could file a class action suit involving all the cars not yet qualified.

"But that is just one of a number of remedies (to the situation)," Hugus added, "and I hope it doesn't come to that."

The only driver to come close to Foyt during the qualifying runs was Johnny Rutherford, who drove his Offenhauser-powered McLaren to an average speed of 190.446 m.p.h. But Rutherford will start on the inside of the ninth row because he lost his chance to qualify in the first session when a blown engine kept him from getting into line before the deadline that day.

Among the other Saturday qualifiers were defending champion Gordon Johncock, 1969 winner Mario Andretti, defending national driving champion Roger McCluskey, two-time Indy winner Al Unser, and comeback-minded Salt Walther.

Johncock, whose car was approved by USAC officials after being impounded for several hours to test the legality of the turbocharger, and Andretti made it into the second row beside Mike Mosley.

Reds hand Astros ninth loss

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson says future opponents better not take Houston lightly despite the Astros' present miseries.

Anderson commented Sunday after the Reds had whipped the Astros 7-1 and extended Houston's losing streak to nine games, one short of the team's all-time record.

"Houston's personnel is too good for this to keep going much longer," Anderson said. "Things are just not going right for them. Somebody is going to pay for all this."

Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter in handing Houston its latest loss. The Reds used a three run first inning to launch their eighth victory in the last 10 games.

Tony Perez had a home run, a double and a single in leading the Cincinnati attack on Houston starter Dave Roberts and three relievers.

"I felt strong all the way. I had all my pitches going for me," said Gullett who struck out 10 and walked only one in boosting his record to 4-3.

The only run Gullett allowed was Lee May's seventh home run of the season in the fourth inning.

After Roger Metzger led off the first inning with a single, Gullett allowed only a walk to Doug Rader until May hit his two-out homer in the fourth.

The other three Astros' hits were Tommy Helms' single in the fifth, Rader's single in the sixth and Bob Watson's single in the ninth. With the exception of May's homer, Gullett allowed no Houston runner to reach second base.

The Reds jumped on Roberts, 5-5, for three hits and three runs in the first inning. Johnny Bench doubled in Joe Morgan, who had walked, and Bench scored on a passed ball by Houston catcher Cliff Johnson. Singles by Perez and George Foster accounted for another run.

Perez hit his eighth homer in the third, and the Reds picked up two more runs in the sixth on a single by Dan Driessen and Gullett's roller that got by Rader at third. The Reds' final run came in the seventh on consecutive doubles by Perez and Foster.

Gullett said Houston is the kind of team "that can break out any minute." Astros Manager Preston Gomez must be wondering when that minute is going to arrive. Willie McCovey has tied Hank Aaron's record. No, not that record. The other one.

Still 305 short of Aaron's career record of 721 home runs, McCovey pulled even with Atlanta's superstar Sunday in the category of career grand slams.

McCovey's 15th bases-loaded homer came in the midst of the San Diego Padres' 10-7, 12-inning victory over San Francisco in the second game of a doubleheader. The Giants won the opener, 8-2.

The home run gave the Padres a temporary 5-3 lead in the fifth inning before a myriad of turns and twists finally settled the four-hour, 19-minute affair.

In Sunday's other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds bombed the Houston Astros 7-1; the Atlanta Braves turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2; the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 6-5; the Montreal Expos took a doubleheader from the New York Mets, 7-4 and 5-0 and the Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates split a pair. The Phillies won the first game 3-2 and the Pirates took the second, 2-1.

Braves 4, Dodgers 2

Hank Aaron and Dave Johnson singled home runs in a three-run first inning and Buzz Capra made them stand up with a five-hitter in Atlanta's victory over Los Angeles.

Cardinals 6, Cubs 5

Ted Simmons' eighth-inning double scored Bake McBride with the run that gave St. Louis its victory over Chicago.

Expos 7-5, Mets 4-0

Ken Singleton's tie-breaking double in the fifth inning capped a rally that lifted Montreal over New York in the first game of their doubleheader. Ernie McAnally hurled a fourhitter to give Montreal its second-game victory.

Phillies 3-1, Pirates 2-2

Larry Bowa's two-run double in the eighth inning rallied Philadelphia to victory in the opener, while Jerry Reuss pitched a six-hitter and Willie Stargell doubled home the winning run for Pittsburgh in the nightcap.

Little Current scores Preakness upset win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Little Current scored a smashing seven-length upset victory in the 99th running of the Preakness Stakes, a race typical of the entire season for 1974's crop of 3-year-old horses.

Before the chestnut colt crossed the finish line Saturday in 1:54 3-5, the third fastest time in Preakness history, Destroyer, Silver Florin, Jolly Johu and Cannonade had held the lead in Pimlico's 1 3-16 mile classic.

Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner who was seeking to repeat Secretariat's 1973 feat as a Triple Crown champion, was in front momentarily as the 13 horses entered the stretch.

But Little Current, a 13-1 choice ridden by Miguel Rivera, bolted through a hole along the rail and drew steadily away down the stretch. Neapolitan Way, another longshot at 24-1, overtook Cannonade and finished second.

Darby Dan Farm, owned by John W. Galbreath, received $156,500 of the record Preakness purse of $209,000, boosting Little Current's career earnings to $207,192.

It was only the second victory in eight stake races this year for the horse. He won the Everglades at Hialeah on March 20, then finished out of the money in the Flamingo, Blue Grass and Kentucky Derby.

The battle to determine the top 3-year-old probably will remain scrambled into the fall. And, the continuing inconsistency could entice a few owners to enter their horses in the Belmont Stakes, the last of the Triple Crown series on June 8.

Little Current, who was fifth in the Derby, and Cannonade are certain entries for the 1½ mile Belmont. Neapolitan Way will be made a supplementary entry, provided there are no after-effects from the cut suffered Saturday on his left hind leg.

Other probable Belmont starters include Hudson County, the Derby runner-up who finished eighth in the Preakness, and All Game, No. 12 in the Preakness and the only horse to finish ahead of Buck's Bid who tossed jockey Donald MacBeth at the gate.

Flyers bounce Bruins in Stanley Cup finale

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia has ceased to be a bad sports joke. The implausible Philadelphia Flyers are champions of the National Hockey League, owners of the biggest prize in hockey—the Stanley Cup.

The Flyers, only seven years old, became the first expansion team to win the storied Cup, and their amazing drive to the title surprised even their coach. They completed the job Sunday with a 1-0 victory over the mighty Boston Bruins.

"If someone asked me at the beginning of the season, if I thought this team would win the Stanley Cup, I'd have said they were crazy," said weary Flyers Coach Fred Shero. "I wasn't even thinking of first place. I didn't think this team would work this hard."

The tough, young Flyers closed out the Bruins on national television, 4-2, in the best-of-seven game series. Rick MacLeish tipped in the only goal of the game at 14:48 of the first period off a drive from just inside the blue line by Andre Dupont.

"I have been around a long time," said Shero, "long enough to know that this is a team that may never be duplicated. They gave you all you asked for, and if you wanted more they came up with it."

Shero was trying to say that the Flyers don't have the talent of the New York Rangers, who they eliminated 4-3 in the semifinals, and aren't in a class personnel-wise with Boston. They won because they were the hungriest team in the playoffs.

Wilson going to state meet

BELLAIRE — Setting a new school record with a leap of 21' 9¾", Washington Senior High's Chuck Wilson topped the long jump field in Saturday's class AA district meet at Bellaire High School. With his winning leap, the senior trackster earned the right to advance to the state competition at Ohio State University this Saturday.

In class AAA district competition at Upper Arlington, Miami Trace's Ron Warnock tossed the shot put 46' 10". However, his effort was not enough, as he failed to place.

Aeros capture World Cup

HOUSTON (AP) — Gordie Howe says winning the World Hockey Association's World Cup with his two sons is the thrill of his career and the city's fans agree—it's their first pro championship in 13 years.

Houston's Aeros ended the championship series with a 6-2 victory over the outmanned Chicago Cougars Sunday night to sweep the finals in four straight games and this unlikely hockey city went wild.

The Aeros rammed in three goals in each of the first two periods, with two goals each by Murray Hall and Larry Lund and four assists by Gordie Howe, and then sparred for the final period.

"We're No. 1" and "Goodbye cougars" rang out from the standing room only crowd of 9,874 early in the first period and increased in intensity as the game progressed.

The Aeros in only their second season became Houston's first pro championship team since the Oilers won the American Football League championship Dec. 24, 1961.

Howe, 46, a National Hockey Association Hall of Famer and holder of many NHL records said he'd have to put the World Cup trophy at the top of the list.

BIG WHEEL — Electricians look tangled in the web of what is billed as the largest ferris wheel in North America, as they work at Cedar Point Amusement Park in Sandusky.

Foreign steel can't plug U.S. gap

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Industry Week magazine said today prices of imported steel are up and availability is down, meaning that "steel users can't lean heavily on imports to fill their needs."

Despite continuing high demand for steel in this country, steel imports in the first quarter totaled only 2,548,901 net tons compared to 3,856,510 net tons a year ago.

"As the availability of foreign steel shrank, the price of imported steel rose," the weekly trade publication reported. "Average value of steel imports...in March was $254.33 per net ton compared with $174.76 in March of last year."

Meanwhile, strong worldwide demand boosted U.S. steel exports in March to 502,733 net tons, highest monthly level since August 1970, IW reported.

The magazine said steelmakers "who have just opened order books for August delivery say there is not the slightest indication of a slackening in demand."

Mill production continues at capacity levels. IW estimated production at U.S. mills for the week ended May 18 at 2,913,000 net tons, down slightly from the preceding week.

IW said the price of scrap continued to drop. The magazine's price composite on top grade steelmaking scrap was $94 last week, compared with $104 the preceding week.

Lottery deposits eyed by board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State lottery commissioners probably will decide by early summer where and how to deposit millions of dollars of lottery money, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said two Cleveland banks, Cleveland Trust and Central National Bank of Cleveland, already have submitted detailed proposals for handling the cash.

The spokesman said the commissioners still must decide how much a central bank will be paid, and how soon the money will be forwarded to the state treasury.

Brownouts avoidable, firms claim

By The Associated Press

Americans won't have to swelter through the summer to avoid power cutbacks or brownouts, but utility officials say people will have to use electricity wisely if they want to prevent problems.

An Associated Press survey showed that electric companies expect to have enough power to satisfy summer demands, barring unforeseen breakdowns or abnormally hot weather.

They urge conservation, however, and say high electricity prices, caused by higher fuel costs, may help cut usage.

Robert Rives, a spokesman for the Kansas Gas & Electric Co., said, "We have adequate facilities and fuel to take care of people's needs, but we think they should use it wisely."

Several utilities said they had extra reserve capacity. A spokesman for Commonwealth Edison of Chicago said, "Our reserve will be 16 per cent. The reserve normally is 14 per cent." He said the extra capacity is the result of a "slowdown in electrical growth. In past years there has been an electrical growth of 5 or 6 per cent a year, but so far this year, it's not growing at all."

A spokesman for the Public Service Co. of Colorado said the power situation looked good for summer.

So did Ernie Quickel, a spokesman for the Georgia Power Co.

Consolidated Edison Co. of New York reported two more extra generating units this year than last. But the company was forced to make a voltage cutback last Friday when the temperature hit 92 degrees. Some equipment was out of service because of repairs and maintenance by company workmen trying to get things ready for summer.

Spokesmen for the New England Power Pool said the only chance of brownouts this summer would be if the weather turned hot at the same time plants were shut down for maintenance.

Officials said it would cost about $19 more to air condition one room in Massachusetts this summer than it did last year, but they said they didn't know whether the cost increase would be enough to cut consumption.

Bicycle ride

Washington Senior High School. He completed the entire course in 70 minutes, only 54 of which were after the riders were free to set their own pace outside the city limits.

Laytart, 609 E. Market St., will receive a trophy for his achievement. He can place it right next to the one he captured last year when he toured the course more rapidly than any of the other 40 entrants. His time last year was 65 minutes.

Coordinated by the Epilson Sigma Alpha Sorority, of Washington C.H. the Million Dollar Bike ride has raised funds for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

The hospital, founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is the world's only facility which is solely dideicated to the research and treatment of catastrophic childhood disease.

The amount raised will not be known until the riders collect the money from their sponsors and turn it in at their respective schools or the Fayette County Bank.

Prizes will be awarded to the riders who received the greatest backing from local merchants or individuals. There will be awards in a number of different age groups.

The school which generates the greatest monetary return will also receive a trophy.

One of the reasons given for the large turnout this year was that the riders themselves were asked to approach businessmen to sponsor them. Last year the sorority contacted local merchants and then sought riders to accept the sponsors' pledge.

Leading the procession of bikers out of town were John Pinnix, of Chillicothe, and his daughter, Debbie. Pinnix rode a 60-inch highwheeler while his daughter mounted a miniature reproduction which was made in Italy. Pinnix's bike, made in 1881, had belonged to his grandfather.

The bicyclists and distance runners took Rowe Ging Road from Wilson Elementary School, through the Lakewood Hills subdivision, across the CCC Highway-W down Palmer Road to Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, past Miami Trace High School to Lewis Road, and then returned the riders to the city by way of Lewis Street.

United telephone contract approved

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP) — A new contract covering about 200 United Telephone Co. employes in the Sidney, Greenville and Eaton areas has been approved, retroactive to May 5.

The new pact, calling for first-year wage increases for top scale plant employes of 39 cents an hour and of 21 cents an hour for traffic employes, was okayed by members of Local 392 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the firm announced.

It runs through May 15, 1977.

Jonathon Winters professional painter

By ROBERT MURPHY

HONOLULU (AP) — Most people think of Jonathan Winters as a rotund funny man who can make people laugh by imitating a chipmunk in a tree or talking like a little old lady.

But Winters, now in his 25th year in show business, has another creative outlet that's been somewhat hidden from the public eye. He's an artist.

"I started out to be an artist originally," he said during a recent vacation in Hawaii. "I studied in school and was going very good until somehow I got tripped up and fell into show business as a comedian.

"Not to say I don't thank God for the day I got into show business, but I must say art was my first love."

Winters says it's difficult to describe what kind of painter he is or to label his art.

"It's like my comedy. . . satirical, and all my paintings are improvisational," he said, adding that they are basically a combination of surrealism and primitiveness.

"And to compare me with anybody, and I don't say this on an ego trip, would be hard to do," said Winters.

HE EXPLAINED that he just tries to create on canvas by sitting down and painting what comes into his head.

"When I get in front of that canvas, I just hope and pray that it will all come together," he said. "I don't plan much. . . I just let my mind wander and paint what comes to mind."

And when Winters' mind is at work or wandering, things often come out funny.

"The first show was back in November, and I did very well," he said. "I think we sold 75 per cent of what we offered."

WHAT DOES a Jonathan Winter original oil painting go for?

"Well, they vary. . . anywhere from $50 to $1,500."

The jolly comedian paints in the basement of his Los Angeles home, which he admits is not the most chic place in the world.

"It has little or no light, especially no great northern light. . . But that all doesn't matter, I still have room to have fun."

He also says painting is a great way to "unwind."

"It's peaceful and lets all your thoughts clear out."

AS FOR the future of his art, Winters says he will take it up on a regular basis when he "decides to hang it up in show business, and as to when that will be is anybody's guess."

Winters is happy to be recognized as a successful and very funny comedian but says the desire is there to be remembered as a good artist.

"You know, it would be kind of fun to be remembered that way," he said.

Opening lead - ace of diamonds.

If you bid and make six hearts vulnerable in duplicate bridge, you score 1,430 points. If your opponents sacrifice against the slam, going down 1,400 points, they get slightly the best of the exchange.

The 30 points they save would be meaningless in rubber bridge, but in a pair game, where every point counts, the 30-point saving looms large.

George Rapee, New York star, once held the West hand in a pair event. He got to six hearts — and would have made seven — but South, a courageous soul, bid six spades.

Rapee doubled and led the ace and another diamond. East won and cashed the K-10 of hearts before playing the king of diamonds at trick four. When declarer ruffed with the nine, Rapee discarded a club!

This extraordinary play worked extremely well. Declarer could not conceive of Rapee's holding the king of spades and he naturally credited East with that card.

Accordingly, when declarer led the jack of spades and West followed low, South rose with the ace on the entirely reasonable basis that nothing could be gained by finessing and that he would escape a trump loser if he found East with the singleton king.

But East showed out and declarer was quickly disillusioned. Rapee won the spade continuation with the king and, having discarded one club, led his remaining one. East took the ace, returned a club which Rapee ruffed, and South was carted off to the tune of 1,700 points.

Had Rapee overruffed the nine of spades with the king, he would have nailed declarer for only 1,400 points and wound up with a poor score. As it was, though, he got an ice-cold top.

Body Protectors: The Glands

Our 5-year-old daughter develops swollen glands in her neck. From time to time with antibiotics they disappear. This happens so often we're beginning to really worry about it. We are afraid that it might be leukemia. Could it be?

Mr. and Mrs. E.N.A. Mich.

Dear Mr. and Mrs. A.:

Your anxiety that your daughter might have leukemia is undoubtedly unfounded. When such anxiety is repressed it can play havoc with the emotional destiny of your child and yourselves.

There are many simple, inconsequential reasons for repeated attacks of swollen glands in the neck.

Lymph glands everywhere in the body act as filters and collect bacteria, waste products and even foreign particles that may have entered into the lymph stream.

All glands are effective protective agents and are placed in important stations everywhere in the body to guard its welfare.

Infected tonsils and adenoids are probably the most obvious reasons for repeated attacks of glandular enlargements. The tonsils and adenoids are glandular structures themselves. When they have lost their protective properties, infection may seep past them and invade the next line of defense, the glands in the neck.

Diseased teeth, gum infections, and scalp infections may cause the glands in the neck to become tender and enlarged.

A complete blood examination will immediately relieve your fears.

It was found that I have a polyp in my bladder. I was told that it is not cancerous, but I worry that this is a possibility.

Dear Mr. R.:

In most instances, polyps are nonmalignant (benign). Only rarely do these tumors undergo malignant changes.

It is for this reason that surgeons keep these polyps under constant surveillance.

Can nail polish cause an allergy?

Miss G.K. Nev.

Dear Miss K.:

Almost every known substance can be responsible for an allergic reaction in people sensitive to the substance.

The chemicals in nail polish can cause an allergic reaction. In fact, some people develop itching and swelling of the eyelids which are traceable to nail polish.

O'Grady blasts Rhodes campaign

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio (AP)—Ohioans "cannot afford the luxury" of another administration of former Gov. James A. Rhodes, a campaign official for Gov. John J. Gilligan said here Saturday.

Eugene P. O'Grady, who is heading up Gilligan's re-election effort against Rhodes, said Rhodes' administration ignored problems in education, environment and mental health.

Gilligan has begun a campaign to clean up inefficiency and mismanagement of Ohio's affairs, O'Grady said.

"The job isn't finished," but every year, he said, "it gets a little better and that means hope."

O'Grady made the remarks in a prepared statement for a meeting here of the Federated Democratic Women of Ohio.

Bonus applications available today

Eligible veterans may receive up to $500 in cash or $1,000 in educational benefits as a result of the bonus approved last session by the General Assembly.

Some 500,000 veterans are expected to apply between now and Dec. 31, 1977, for the benefits, said John W. Bush, bonus commission director.

Bush said it could take months, even up to a year, for some veterans to receive their payments.

He said applications also are available at the veterans services for families of deceased veterans, or men still listed as prisoners of war or missing in action.

Irish strike call eased

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Faced with a government threat to use troops to maintain electric power supplies, militant Protestants have withdrawn plans to expand their general strike to all of Northern Ireland's power sations. But blackouts were continuing in many areas today.

In London, Scotland Yard called for increased vigilance for what it said could be a new bomb offense by the militant Catholic Irish Republican Army.

The statement came after a bomb exploded in a car at the city's airport and a second explosive was defused outside an army building in south London. There were no serious injuries, but police warned persons to be on the guard for bombs in the morning mail.

In Belfast, the Protestant strike leaders backed down Sunday night on their threat to close power stations after Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister of state for Northern Ireland, declared a state of emergency empowering him to bring in army power engineers if the strikers had honored their threat.

Two hours before the deadline, the strikers agreed to keep open the five plants still operating to supply power at a level necessary to ensure the safety of the system. Walkouts at power plants had shut off power to two-thirds of Ulster for long periods on Sunday.

Welfare rolls cut

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Welfare Director Charles Bates said today 5,633 persons left welfare rolls the first two months of this year as a direct result of Ohio's Work Registration Program.

Bates said an additional 4,172 persons receiving Aid to Dependent Children or General Relief payments also left the rolls during January and February because of changes in economic status or eligibility.

Nixon pushes health insurance plan via radio

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon is making a new pitch for his national health insurance plan as the Senate prepares to launch committee hearings on rival insurance legislation.

Nixon scheduled a nationwide radio address for 12:07 p.m. EDT today. He has delivered a series of similar talks this year following midday network newscasts.

The President was planning to return to Washington Monday night after a four-day weekend here and in the Bahamas. He apparently spent much of his time relaxing but reportedly kept in close touch with the Middle East peace mission of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Consolidation of agencies being pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A controversial plan by the Agriculture Department to consolidate field offices of four major agencies into "service centers" to give farmers one-step service is proceeding on target, officials say.

The plan was announced Nov. 21 and immediately drew protests from many members of Congress and local officials that it would result in USDA offices being closed in many counties.

Although department officials concede some counties will not have full service centers representing all agencies, they say the plan will not mean widespread abandonment of existing offices.

Joseph R. Wright Jr., assistant secretary of agriculture for administration, said rumors that the consolidation plan had been abandoned were not true. But there have been problems in getting full-scale consolidation plans approved at the state level, he told a reporter.

As a result, Wright said, state administrative committees have been asked to submit consolidation plans for counties that already have been agreed upon, meaning that "the more difficult cases" will be worked out later.

Consolidation of county field offices in the USDA network has been going on for many years. But the service center concept announced last fall served notice that consolidation would be undertaken on a broad scale, with no county immune to the possibility of having some of its facilities combined with those in others.

Retiring water company employe feted at party

Employes of the Ohio Water Service Co., honored Emerson Warner, who is retiring from the company after completing 45 years of service, at a retirement party Saturday night in the Terrace Lounge.

Warner, 425 Comfort Lane, who joined the Ohio Water Service Co., in 1928, has served as assistant manager for the past 14 years.

He started with the Marysville Water Co., in 1928 and worked as a meter reader and meter repairman at Massilon and Circleville, which at that time was one of the properties of the Ohio Water Service Co., of Struthers.

The veteran water company employe came to Washington C. H. in 1929 and served under O. D. Farquar until his retirement in 1955. Warner was elevated to manager of the Washington C. H. office in 1955 and served in that position until 1962 when Everitt Robbins became manager. Warner remained as assistant manager until his retirement.

Voluntary contributions were collected from friends and fellow employes at both the Ohio Water Service Co., plants in Washington C. H. and Marysville. A new fishing rod and reel and other special gifts were presented to the retiring employe.

A total of 50 employes and other special guests attended. Representing the board of directors were Dr. and Mrs. J. H, Persinger. Others guests were Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Sloan, vice president and manager of the Massillon property, Mr. and Mrs. Dell N. Smith, of Marysville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robbins.

Commission eyes regional planning vote allocation

Members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Monday morning reviewed a proposal for the allocation of voting strength in the eight-county Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission.

Commissioners also were to hold a public hearing on proposed changes in the subdivision regulations for Fayette County at 3 p.m. today. The subdivision regulations will not be officially adopted until a Fayette County Planning Commission public hearng which has been scheduled at 8 p.m. June 18.

Chairman J. Herbert Perrill said a special Mid-Ohio Regional Planning negotiating sub-committee has devised a single voting system using a structuring formula. The proposed voting system will be considered during a meeting at 10 a.m. Thursday in Columbus.

Under the proposal, Perrill said a double requirement would exist for a quorum to take action on any matter.

The provisions would require that 51 per cent of the total board members (at least 25) be present and that three-fourths of the member (at least 6) counties be represented.

IN ADDITION, Perrill noted that a three-fourths vote of all members present would be required to constitute an official action.

He said if the quorum requirement is not met at a given meeting, official action could be taken at the next meeting by a three-fourths vote of 51 per cent of the total board members.

An important feature of the proposal is that costs of operation would be allocated to the governmental units on the basis of their voting percentage, not per capita.

At least two-thirds of the representatives from each county must be local elected officials; one commissioner from each member county; one county appointee, preferably a township trustee; one person to represent all villages in the county, and one representative from each county for each increment of 100,000 population.

Under the proposal, Fayette, Fairfield, Delaware, Madison, Pickaway and Union counties would each have 8.3 per cent of the voting strength. Franklin County would have 39.7 per cent and Licking County would have 10.5 per cent.

Fayette County has only 2.2 per cent of the population of the eight-county area and would have four representatives on the 48-member board.

Kennedy's income said $461,444

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy paid $217,844 in federal income taxes on an unadjusted gross income of $461,444 in 1973, according to tax records he disclosed to two Boston newspapers.

The Boston Herald American and the Boston Globe today published the joint tax return filed by Kennedy and his wife, Joan, reporting the Massachusetts Democrat's income beyond his congressional salary of $42,500.

Kennedy's income included $21,567 in dividends, $270,080 from the Joseph P. Kennedy 1926 trust, $126,257 from the Joseph P. Kennedy 1936 trust, $3,355 from publications, speaking fees and miscellaneous sources and $1,623 from four oil wells in Texas and Louisiana owned by the Forest Oil Co. The late Joseph P. Kennedy was the senator's father.

Kennedy deducted from his gross income $38,773 in current taxes other than federal; $24,985 for mortgage payments; $4,678 for charitable contributions; and $26,308 in net miscellaneous deductions.

Kennedy declined to be immediately quoted about his tax returns, but said the data was released because of the public's growing concern about the extra income of elected officials.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Patricia Hearst, the soft-spoken coed who screamed "let me go" as she was violently kidnaped 3½ months ago, was hunted today by hundreds of lawmen as an "armed and extremely dangerous" member of the terrorist group which abducted her.

With six of Miss Hearst's alleged captors dead after a series of weekend developments in which the case began to break open, the FBI led a blitzing search in this city today for the remnants of the nearly decimated Symbionese Liberation Army, and for Miss Hearst.

The FBI said Sunday night it would charge Miss Hearst as the woman who pumped automatic rifle fire into a sporting goods store on Thursday, the incident that triggered the army of lawmen into action as they began to close in on the SLA.

The FBI said it believes Miss Hearst, who 106 days ago was pursuing her art studies and quietly planning a summer wedding, to be part of what is left of her captors.

"Apparently she has joined forces with the SLA," William A. Sullivan, assistant director of the Los Angeles FBI office, said of the 20-year-old newspaper heiress Sunday night. He added:

"She will be given the opportunity to surrender. If she opens fire on FBI agents or police, the fire will be returned."

Police said early today all units were seeking a young white woman and two black men "considered armed and dangerous and may be suspected SLA members" who tried to offer "several hundred dollars" to a landlady if she would give them a room Sunday night.

The woman was described as 18 to 20, blonde hair, blue eyes, with a sawed-off shotgun on a sling concealed under her coat. Miss Hearst has brown hair and brown eyes. The men were described as in their 20s, one 6-foot-3 and the other 5-foot-4.

Police said when the landlady refused to rent the room, she was slashed at with a knife. Her clothing was cut but she was unharmed. Her assailants reportedly fled in a red and black sedan.

Named in a warrant charging federal firearms violations were Miss Hearst and William and Emily Harris, a husband and wife in their late 20s. The Harrises are white.

If there was any solid SLA connection with the two black men sought early today, police did not give it.

Six persons, including acknowledged SLA leader Cinque, are dead, victims of a Friday night shootout with an estimated 500 law officers that lasted more than an hour before their hideout house burned. When the charred remains of all six were finally identified by Sunday afternoon, the dead included what was believed to be all the top leaders of the SLA, which now appears not to have numbered more than a dozen.

In tape recordings issued as the country's first political kidnaping unfolded, Miss Hearst pledged her allegiance to the SLA, renounced her family, ridiculed her fiance and repeated the violent SLA goals of revolution on behalf of the people. But her family always said it believed the statements were coerced. Most authorities appeared to believe that, until this weekend.

Formal complaints were to be filed today against Miss Hearst and the Harrises, who Sullivan said he believed were still in Southern California. A youth who identified Miss Hearst for the FBI said she told him she raked a sporting goods store with rifle fire as she and the Harrises made their getaway after a bungled attempt to shoplift a pair of 49-cent socks.

More court proceedings in Watergate cases

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new round of court proceedings is getting under way in preparation for next month's conspiracy trial of two former Nixon lieutenants and the agents they allegedly dispatched to burglarize the office of Daniel Ellsberg's psychiatrist.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell scheduled four days of hearings, beginning today, to hear more than two dozen motions ranging from dismissal of charges to demands for White House materials to prove national security was involved in the break-in.

Meanwhile, Watergate was said to be hurting Republican fund raising efforts, and President Nixon's chief of staff Alexander M. Haig Jr. was quoted as saying he was so disturbed by the transcripts of the Watergate tapes that he had to reevaluate his job.

Haig, however, through an aide denied as totally false the Newsweek report.

"Gen. Haig has never implied the need to re-evaluate his position and he challenges Newsweek to support this report," his associate said from the Florida White House at Key Biscayne.

The fund raising problems were discussed by Republican leaders in separate interviews Sunday.

Sen. William Brock, R-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Republican Campaign Committee, Rep. Robert Michel, head of the House Republican Campaign Committee, and GOP chairman George Bush all said Nixon should not resign. "The country, Bush said, "should leave aside political expediency and see the (impeachment) process through.

The main arguments before Gesell, to be heard Tuesday, will be whether the six men charged can use national security as a defense to the conspiracy charges. Gesell has said that if it can be proven foreign policy was involved he might have to dismiss the charges. Among those charged are former top Nixon aides John D. Ehrlichman and Charles W. Colson.

In another court, a ruling was expected today from Judge Barrington Parker on motions to dismiss a perjury indictment against Lt. Gov. Ed Reinecke of California or, failing that, to transfer the trial there.

A three-count indictment returned April 3 accuses Reinecke of lying to a federal grand jury about certain details of his role in helping to arrange for the 1972 Republican national convention in San Diego, Calif. The convention later was shifted to Miami Beach, Fla.

At a pre-trial hearing last week, Reinecke's attorneys argued that he had been trapped and misled by Watergate prosecutors into believing he would not be indicted if he agreed to cooperate and testify.

He opposes state controller Houston I. Flourney in the June 4 primary for governor and his attorneys in California have said he wants to get his trial over with before then.

John J. Sirica, the judge most involved in Watergate matters, also had a busy week ahead in four different areas.

He was expected to rule on whether President Nixon must turn over tape recordings of 64 conversations to special prosecutor Leon Jaworski, who has subpoenaed them for the Sept. 9 trial of seven Watergate cover-up defendants.

He also promised to release the long-awaited experts' report on causes of an 18½-minute gap in a tape surrendered earlier by the White House. The release depended on when the report, turned over to Sirica last week, was printed.

Tuesday, Sirica will sentence Jeb Stuart Magruder, the former White House and re-election committee official who was instrumental in disclosing the Watergate cover-up. Magruder pleaded guilty last August to one count of obstructing justice. The charge carries a maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine.

The judge also is involved in litigation before the U.S. Court of Appeals in an effort by five of the cover-up defendants to have him removed as the trial judge. The government was to respond to the appeals court petition today. It was expected that the court then quickly will decide the case from the legal papers or schedule a hearing on the matter.

Truckers reject shutdown proposal

FRANKLIN, Ohio (AP) — Independent truckers meeting near Franklin voted overwhelmingly Sunday to stay on the roads.

The truckers rejected a proposal for a second nationwide truck strike, with about two-thirds of the 500 present voting against the strike.

Spokesmen for the truckers cited various reasons for the vote, including stabilization of fuel prices and the timing of the proposed shutdown.

Truckers said the freight business is in a slow period now, and large trucking companies could pick up the slack from the shutdown.

Others said diesel fuel prices have stabilized in recent weeks.

Carl Bray, an Ohio trucking leader, attributed the defeat of the strike vote to dissension among truckers, including the dispute between Hill and Parkhurst.

One of the truckers present, who favored the strike, said things haven't improved since the last national shutdown early this year.

"The six per cent surcharge they gave us was eaten up by fuel increases before it went into effect," said the trucker, who refused to identify himself.

"I run in 38 states," he said. "Fifteen months ago, I was paying 32 cents a gallon for fuel. When we went out (on strike) this year, I was paying 42 to 48 cents a gallon.

"Now, it's 52 to 57 cents," he said. He added, however, that he would abide by the vote.

Parkhurst, who attended the meeting, said he wasn't sure the vote reflected the true sentiment of independent drivers.

"We don't know how many voting here were owner-operators and how many were company drivers," he said. "There are ways to load up meetings, although I'm not saying it happened here."

The Ohio vote was being watched closely in other states because of its possible impact on shutdowns there. Ohio was a focal point in the earlier shutdown, and some felt a vote against the strike might deal a fatal blow to any national shutdown.

In at least two other states— Indiana and New York—truckers called local news media and claimed the Ohio truckers had approved the shutdown.

Report Sowle learned of kidnap plot

ATHENS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio University President Claude Sowle resigned after learning of a kidnap plot against a member of his family, it was reported today.

The reporter said Sowle had requested a check by OU police Friday and that the police had uncovered a kidnap scheme in the planning process, a spokesman for the newspaper said.

OU security police refused to confirm the statement.

Meanwhile, William Morris, chairman of the OU Board of Trustees, said Monday Sowle has agreed to reconsider his resignation.

Lottery ticket measure pushed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A House-passed bill to make sure Ohio's tavern and bar operators can sell state lottery tickets come up for a vote Tuesday in the Ohio Senate.

Sen. Ronald M. Mottl, D-24 Parma, sponsor of the constitutional amendment that lifted the ban against lotteries and a principle figure in its implementation, said "I don't expect any problem with the bill in the Senate."

If it passes and is approved by Gov. John J. Gilligan as expected, bar and tavern owners, as well as grocers who sell beer and wine, will be among an estimated 10,000 Ohio business owners selling 50-cent lottery tickets starting in mid-August.

They will be paid five per cent, or 2½ cents for each ticket they sell, under agent licensing regulations adopted by the newly created State Lottery Commission.

Rep. Arthur Wilkowski, D-46 Toledo, introduced the pending measure as a result of an existing regulation of the State Liquor Control Commission. It prohibits liquor permit holders from promoting a game of chance.

Mottl said the regulation is "nebulous," and may or may not apply to the lottery. But he said the bill would prevail in any case, and that he believes the liquor department would like to have the matter clarified.

The same problem had to be worked out in some of the other states which adopted a lottery, the senator said.

The Cuyahoga County lawmaker said he does not expect opposition in the Senate based on assertions that sale of tickets to drinking patrons is conducive to "having them blow their weekly pay checks."

That argument was presented forcefully when the bill was debated in the House last Feb. 26, and it finally passed on a second roll call SB43.

Mottl said he is prepared to offer the Senate statistics from other states which show that this concern is not well-founded.

Among other things, Mottl said the statistics show that supermarkets are the leading sellers of lottery tickets with liquor spots coming in second. "This puts down the argument that wholesale numbers of people are blowing their pay checks on the lottery," he said.

Viet Reds plan more attacks

WASHINGTON (AP) — North Vietnam's Communist party has ordered intensified attacks in South Vietnam over the next couple of months, U.S. intelligence sources report.

However, military analysts said the orders indicate the attacks will be short of a major offensive.

Widespread fighting across South Vietnam in the past few days may reflect the new orders, which sources said the Communist command recently issued to its main-force troop units there.

The orders were said to be based on a resolution adopted by Lao Dong party leaders in Hanoi, calling for increased military operations to support what was called "the political struggle" in the South.

As U.S. analysts read them, the Communist aims are to bleed Saigon's army, panic South Vietnam civilians and erode their confidence in the Saigon government.

This is in line with over-all Communist strategy for 1974, as outlined by intelligence reports last December. Basically, this strategy seeks the progressive weakening of the Thieu regime without escalating the war back to full scale.

The Communists already have made considerable progress toward another objective, gradually widening control in border regions of South Vietnam.

The stepped-up fighting comes at a time when Pentagon officials say the South Vietnamese will have to save ammunition because Congress has rejected an increase in U.S. military aid for the last two months of this fiscal year.

Charity event draws 285 riders, 2 runners

By GEORGE MALEK

More than 285 bicyclists participated in the 20-mile bicycle ride for St. Jude's Children's Hospital Sunday. The total included two distance runners who accompanied the riders.

The number of participants was many times larger than the 41 persons who took part last summer, and only three dropped out this time as opposed to five last year.

Two of the three who did not finish were Miami Trace High School distance runners Ernie Perry and Joel Vannorsdall, both of whom were traveling "on the hoof." Vannorsdall completed the first six miles of the 20-mile course before hanging up his sneakers while Perry legged it out for nearly 15 miles.

Perry, who is the school record-holder in the two-mile run at Miami Trace, had never run more than five miles at a time before Sunday's jaunt. When he finally "ran out of gas" at the three-quarter mark of the course, he was not very far behind the rear guard of the bicyclists.

Both runners were sponsored by the Miami Trace track team and a number of students and faculty members.

The other non-finisher was a young lady who became careless during the long ride and "dumped" her bike after hitting a rock. She received very minor injury.

Congress faces several measures

WASHINGTON (AP) — A $23 billion education bill that would extend several of the most important school aid programs for four years is coming up for a vote and probable passage in the Senate.

Restrictions on busing to achieve desegregation, the most serious hurdle to passage, were cleared last week with adoption of an amendment containing some new limitations. The courts, however, would still be free to order busing where judges decide this is required to maintain equal rights.

The Senate has agreed that no more antibusing proposals will be offered during today's final debate. But it has scheduled action on at least 11 other amendments before voting later in the day.

The big fight is expected on a move to cut military aid to South Vietnam from $1.4 billion to $900 million.

Later in the week, the House plans action on a community services bill to provide a new home for antipoverty programs. The Nixon administration wants to end by June 30 the Office of Economic Opportunity, the antipoverty agency set up 10 years ago.

The House also is to take up a bill raising the national debt limit from $475.7 billion to $495 billion and perhaps a measure to boost oil industry taxes by $14 billion in the next six years.

The House Judiciary Committee will continue for three days starting Monday its private review of the evidence in the Nixon impeachment inquiry, concentrating on the Watergate break-in phase.

The Senate is scheduled to go back Monday to debate on a standby energy conservation bill.

Some senators have said they will try to attach an oil price rollback provision to the measure. A similar provision led to a veto by President Nixon of an emergency energy bill early in this session.

Both the House and Senate will begin their fourth recess of the year Thursday. This one, arranged to cover the Memorial Day weekend, will end next Tuesday.

Newsman's contempt case heard

LOS ANGELES (AP) — TV anchorman Walter Cronkite and several other top reporters are testifying in support of a colleague who is risking another jail term in order to keep confidential news sources secret.

CBS anchorman Cronkite is one of several top reporters scheduled to appear at the court hearing which begins today to determine whether William Farr, a Los Angeles Times reporter who has served 46 days in jail, can be imprisoned again.

Farr's planned witness list also included NBC-TV White House correspondent Tom Brokaw, Los Angeles Times' Washington reporter Jack Nelson and New York Times' San Francisco bureau chief Wallace Turner. Nelson and Turner are Pulitzer Prize winners.

The issue on which they will be asked to testify is whether Farr, in refusing to reveal sources of a story during the Manson trial, was following an established ethical and moral principle of journalism.

The case, which has been in litigation more than three years, involves a demand by Manson trial judge Charles H. Older that Farr tell him which two of six attorneys in that trial violated a court order by giving Farr information for a story. Farr refused, saying he promised his sources confidentiality and could not break that trust.

Aussie vote seen rebuff for Whitlam

SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Prime Minister Gough Whitlam's Labor government appeared today to have won reelection, but newspapers and opposition politicians said the Laborites' narrow victory margin was a warning from the voters.

The latest returns showed Sunday that Labor had won 64 seats in Saturday's race for the 127-member House of Representatives, while Bill Snedden's Liberal-Country party coalition had 57. Six seats were undecided. The old House had 125 seats, 67 held by Labor.

Most analysts predicted the final results—which may not be known for several days—will give Labor a majority of one to three seats. The leader of the majority party or coalition in the House becomes prime minister and forms the government.

In the tight race for the Senate, the experts predicted Labor may take from 29 to 31 of the 60 seats. It held 26 in the old Senate.

Snedden, 47, had forged his campaign on what he saw as voter discontent over the country's 14 per cent inflation rate. He refused to concede the election by Sunday night, although he said Labor appeared to be winning a majority.

Snedden said Labor's lack of a big margin, and its apparent loss of seats, was a warning to Whitlam.

The Sydney Morning Herald agreed, saying in an editorial that "for the Labor party and especially for Mr. Whitlam, even the best result in the present confusing circumstances represents a sharp rebuff."

Patty Hearst

and was not expected to have any comment until later today, said a spokesman at the family home in Hillsborough, Calif.

Hearst, president and editor of the San Francisco Examiner, had already endured tense waits while authorities determined if any of four dead women in a fire-gutted house was his daughter.

First there was a wait of 20 hours until the charred bodies of the first three women found in the rubble of the house after the Friday shoot out were identified. Then there was a wait of about three hours after a body of another white woman was found Sunday morning.

The dead included Donald David DeFreeze, 30, the SLA leader known as Cinque; Nancy Ling Perry, 26, the group's theoretician; and SLA members Patricia "Mizmoon" Soltysik, 24; Camilla Hall, 29; Angela Atwood, 25, and William Wolfe, 23.

Exploded cartridge belts were found around the disfigured bodies of Miss Soltysik, Miss Perry and Miss Hall. The county coroner said Miss Hall died of gunshot wounds in the head, as did DeFreeze. He said tests were being conducted to find out if any of the victims had committed suicide as their hideout crumbled in flames Friday.

Police also were still seeking Thero Wheeler, an escaped convict who knew DeFreeze in prison and who was identified in published reports as one of the persons who dragged Miss Hearst from her Berkeley apartment on Feb. 4. Wheeler's girl friend said recently that he has broken with the group.

Meanwhile, authorities released Christine Johnson, 35, who ran from the besieged house during the Friday gun battle, and had been booked for investigation of harboring criminals. The charges were dropped.

Her 18-year-old son, James, told the Los Angeles Times he had talked with a woman he identified as Miss Hearst in the house less than 24 hours before the holocaust that killed the others.

James said the woman affirmed her allegiance to the SLA and that she told him: "They'll have to kill me before I go back, I'm not going back there."

He said the woman left the house Thursday night with two black men who said "they were just getting away from the heat."

Early today lawmen flocked back to the neighborhood of the Friday shootout after receiving a report that two black men and a white woman had offered a woman "several hundred dollars" to allow them to rent a room. They said the woman refused and that before fleeing at least one of the persons tried to slash her with a knife, but did not injure her.

They said it was "possibly connected" with the SLA.

The FBI's informant, Tom Dean Mathews, 18, said a woman he identified as Miss Hearst and two other persons—the Harrises—held him for more than 12 hours Friday after commandeering his van truck in a getaway from the sporting goods store shooting. He said the woman called herself Tania and said she was a willing participant in the April 15 bank holdup in San Francisco which netted more than $10,000.

Sullivan said information about Miss Hearst's participation in that bank robbery would be presented to a grand jury in San Francisco today.

He also disclosed that a second man, Frank Richard Sutter, was abducted after Matthews was released about 6:30 a.m. Friday. The FBI agent said Sutter was kidnaped when Miss Hearst and the Harrises allegedly commandeered his Lincoln Continental.

He was released about noon Friday in the Griffith Park area north of downtown Los Angeles, and he later found his car nearby. Sullivan said Sutter identified "one or more of the trio."

It was the sporting goods store shooting Thursday that alerted police that SLA members were in Los Angeles, sparking a manhunt that led to a house in predominantly black southcentral Los Angeles where Friday's fierce gun battle and fire took place.

Fair skies and moderate temperatures were expected to continue in Ohio through Tuesday. But the National Weather Service forecast showers by midweek.

Temperatures Sunday night dipped into the 40s and 50s, but were expected to continue in the 70s during the day. Residents along the Lake Erie shoreline anticipated highs in the upper 60s, while the low 80s were expected for the Ohio River region.

The weatherman said temperatures in the 80s would cover much of the state Tuesday, followed by showers and thundershowers later in the week.

South Vietnamese launch offensive

BEN CAT, South Vietnam (AP) — Backed by heavy air and artillery support, South Vietnamese troops launched a three-pronged counter-offensive today against North Vietnamese forces 25 miles north of Saigon.

They were moving against the village of An Dien, captured Friday by the North Vietnamese, about 1½ miles southwest of Ben Cat in the strategic "Iron Triangle" area along the Saigon River. Government artillery and planes were blasting the village, crumbling scores of ramshackle tin-roofed homes. Most of An Dien's 2,000 civilians reportedly have fled to government lines.

British study defense cutback

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (AP) — Britain's Labor government expects to decide this October on defense cuts even bigger than those made in 1968, says a ranking defense official.

Will Rodgers, British minister of state for defense, made the comment on a trip through the Far East to collect the views of friendly governments on Britain's military presence in the area. He already has visited Malaysia and Singapore and will go on to Australia.

Rodgers said the 1968 defense cuts, which substantially reduced Britain's ground commitments east of Suez, "did not involve the savings of the size we are talking about now."

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Kuwait's oil minister says his country will not try to reimpose the Arab oil embargo against the United States under prevailing circumstances, the Beirut daily Al Bayrak reported today.

"We consider the United States is the only country that is sincerely working for peace in the Middle East. ... It has abandoned its traditional support for Israel because it believes in human justice," Atiki said.

Dead SLA members had normal backgrounds

By TIM REITERMAN
Associated Press Writer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A black prison escapee and five young white radicals lived briefly with guns, leftist rhetoric and dreams of revolutionary victory.

But as their charred, disfigured bodies were dug from the ruins of a Symbionese Liberation Army hideout during the weekend, the words from one of their threatening communiques rang hollowly prophetic:

"There are two things to remember about revolution. We are going to get our asses kicked, and we are going to win."

Behind the words and exploits of the SLA and its leader, Donald David DeFreeze, were five people whose backgrounds hardly would portend their deaths in a blazing Los Angeles bungalow:

William "Willie" Wolfe, 23, a gifted young man who in high school was a National Merit Scholarship finalist;

Patricia Monique Soltysik, 24, who was a high school honor student;

Camilla "Candy" Hall, 29, Minnesota-born daughter of a Lutheran minister and a former social worker.

Their paths began to cross at the California Medical Facility at Vacaville, where some of them tutored a prison support group called the Black Cultural Association.

Imprisoned there was DeFreeze—the acknowledged head of the SLA and the man who called himself Cinque, after the leader of a slave rebellion. Here is some of what is known of them:

DeFREEZE

The eldest son of a middleclass black couple from Cleveland, DeFreeze dropped out of school at 14, went to reform school for two years, then was paroled.

"I was still lonely," DeFreeze later wrote to a judge. "I didn't love anyone nor did anyone love me." He subsequently married a Newark, N.J., mother of three.

"I worked two jobs and was a thief in between," he wrote. "She had all that she wanted, TVs in every room. Her home looks better than a movie star's and still she wanted more."

Distraught over a legal separation, he diverted himself with guns and firecrackers. He was arrested in California and New Jersey on weapons charges but evaded jail.

In his last arrest, DeFreeze was wounded in a 1969 gun battle with police after trying to cash a stolen check. Sentenced to five years to life, he was sent to Vacaville, where authorities say he was obsessed with religion.

Later he was transferred to Soledad Prison and escaped in March 1973. But it was at Vacaville that he apparently laid the groundwork for the SLA's cause and recruited the other members.

PERRY

Nancy Perry frequently visited Vacaville when she was not selling fruit juice at a Berkeley street stand. The onetime conservative who endorsed Goldwater for president in 1964 had undergone a transformation that included drug use and leftist political beliefs.

Born in Santa Rosa, Calif., the daughter of a furniture store owner, the petite young woman with piercing dark eyes was a high school cheerleader and a class secretary. She attended Whittier College and then transferred to the University of California at Berkeley to study English.

She was married in 1967 to Gilbert Scott Perry, a pianist and composer who described her as "loving." The couple separated after six years.

ATWOOD

The Indiana University graduate came to Berkeley with her husband, Gary, in 1972; they split up a year later. Mrs. Atwood later moved in with fellow Indiana natives and reported SLA members Emily and Bill Harris. The Harrises were charged Sunday with gun violations in connection with a shootout Thursday at a sporting goods store in Inglewood, near Los Angeles.

The trio worked on prison reform, then Atwood and Joseph Remiro reportedly started a romance. She vanished when Remiro was arrested Jan. 10 in the slaying of Oakland Schools Supt. Marcus Foster.

WOLFE

"Willie" Wolfe was chararacterized as an apolitical underachiever while a student at Mt. Hermon Academy in Northhampton, Mass.

"Willie would go out of his way not to break the rules. The whole year I roomed with him, I don't think he read one political book," said Nicholas Monjo, a Mt. Hermon schoolmate.

Later Wolfe attended UC Berkeley where his black studies course took him to Vacaville and to DeFreeze.

"He was constantly talking about Red China," said his brother John. "He was trying to look like Che Guevara."

Wolfe moved to the Maoistoriented "Peking House" commune in Berkeley, dropped out of school, then reportedly sold hot dogs.

SOLTYSIK

Patricia Soltysik came to Berkeley after high school at Goleta, Calif., where she conformed as an honor student. She became a militant feminist and took the name "Mizmoon" from a love poem written to her by another woman.

"Some people can live in Berkeley and come out of it unscathed," said her brother Fred Soltysik. "Others are consumed by it. Mizmoon was consumed by it."

In February 1972, she tossed away her cashmere sweaters for coveralls and started work as a janitor at the Berkeley Public Library. She worked on a photo essay on elderly San Francisco women and wrote letters to prisoners.

HALL

Friends say Miss Soltysik met and lived with "Candy" Hall. Miss Hall was the only surviving child of The Rev. George F. Hall, a pastor of St. John's Lutheran Church in Lincolnwood, Ill.

She came to Berkeley in 1971 after social work in Minneapolis and got a job as a maintenance worker for the East Bay Regional Park District. She worked avidly but peacefully in the antiwar and women's liberation movements.

"She was really angered that she couldn't do something constructive in society," said a friend, Joyce Halverson.

Unusual museums preserve America

CITY OF MUSEUMS — This old-time country store is one of the exhibits in the Farmers' Museum in Cooperstown, N.Y. The old stores and houses on the grounds feature Early American handicrafts and kitchen equipment. Other museums in Cooperstown that offer a glimpse into the nation's past include the Carriage and Harness Museum, Fenimore House containing memorabilia of author James Fenimore Cooper, Indian Museum and the National Baseball Museum. NEW YORK (AP) — Where is the only existing monument to a boll weevil?

Where is the museum devoted to the industry of whiskey distillation?

Where is the one still-standing example of the estimated one billion sod houses built by homesteaders?

Where was the first pretzel bakery in the country?

The monument that honors an insect is in Enterprise, Ala; the Barton Museum of Whiskey History is in Bardstown, Ky.; the remaining sod house is in Cleo Springs, Okla.; and the bakery, which started operation in 1861 in Lititz, Pa., is now a museum that offers pretzel-baking demonstrations.

"There are three unusual museums in Florida exhibiting sunken treasure salvaged from wrecks. There are museums for dolls, clocks, musical instruments — almost any object has a history," adds Sylvia McNair, senior editor of travel guides for Rand McNally, who can come up with a sightseeing suggestion, no matter what your interest.

"We use to think from reading history books that military and political history was all that counted. But people's concept of what history includes is broadening," says Mrs. McNair, whose latest research and editing project is "Discover Historic America," a guide to sites, battlefields, homes, museums and shrines throughout the country.

WITH the Bicentennial approaching she sees increased consciousness of the need to preserve landmarks, restore buildings and save artifacts.

"But it's amazing how much has been done all along," she says. "In New England especially people have been aware of the necessity to preserve things since Colonial days. Maybe it's just part of the old Yankee thrift.

"Remmber that the Bicentennial concentrates on only the last 200 years of our history," she continues. "But in St. Augustine, Fla., for instance, you can go back 400 years and in Santa Fe., N.M., you can see traces of its history dating back to its founding in 1610."

The editor notes that the increasing national awareness of black history is resulting in more visitors to such places as Harriet Tubman's home in Auburn, N.Y.; the Frederick Douglas Institute of Negro Arts and History in Washington, D.C., and the Carver Museum in Tuskegee, Ala.

"Transportation played a tremendously important part in our history and many towns were founded when the railroad came in," she points out. "You can see that part of our past in railroad museums and there are other featuring trolleys, cars, stagecoaches, firefighting equipment, marine museums and of course now airplane and space exhibits.

"It's important to understand the lifestyle of different periods — to see a covered wagon and realize how much courage, strength and health pioneers needed to travel across the vast spaces to settle the West," she says. "It's a kind of inspiration to think that luxury is not the only thing to be sought after."

"Do some general reading about an area before visiting it, find out what people settled it, how they made a living — what particular kind of agriculture and industry there was," she advises. "Take time to read historical markers, go to museums learn how people lived in the past.

"It helps to bridge the generation gap for parents to become aware of the sweep of history., By seeing how different their life is from that of their grandparents, they will understand that their children's lifestyle will be different from their own."

Mrs. McNair, who is an inveterate traveler both on the job and off, especially enjoys visiting Presidents' birthplaces and homes when she is on vacation. "But I don't take a real vacation anymore," she admits. "I'm always researching whenever I travel."

A gold nugget was found in Dawson City, Yukon, that weighed 72 ounces and 8.5 grains. It was nearly six inches long and was 2¾ inches wide at the heavy end and 1¼ inches at the smaller end. At $16 an ounce it was valued at $1,158 in 1898.

Customer Pays Tribute To Mattress

After being put to 14 different uses over 25 years, a mattress "deserves a second chance."

"After 9,230 days and nights of being slept on, loved on, fought on, bounced on, sat upon, tossed on, sick on, laughed on, wept on, baby diapers changed on, clothes closets dumped on, furniture stacked on (during room painting), ironed on, dress and drape fabric cut on — they are beginning to tire and must be put to rest."

Understandably enough, the customer wanted to replace the veteran mattress with the same brand.

War games in a bloody century

It has often been remarked that human beings are an odd sort. This ancient truism can be invoked to help account for the widespread love of war games. The reference is to the old-fashioned sort of war games which involve deploying toy soldiers in various tactical situations to see which side can win. It seems that this diversion is "more popular today than ever before."

The quote is from a knowledgeable source, Jack Scruby, whose Soldier Factory in Cambria, Calif., ships some 25,000 tin-lead soldiers monthly to buyers scattered about the world. Says he, further: "War gaming is the number one hobby in England, and it isn't far behind in the United States."

This, be it noted, toward the shank end of a century whose record for mass slaughter under the aegis of contending governments exceeds that of any other in all history. One might suppose that in such a century, after two world wars and Korea and Vietnam and a variety of lesser but no less vicious conflicts, the very idea of battle might cause universal revulsion.

Many do feel a profound revulsion, of course; perhaps a majority, though this is a dubious proposition. Yet the popularity of sending uniformed mannikins against one another on a board representing the bloody field of battle suggests that many may subconsciously think of war as a kind of glorious pastime.

This notion must not be pushed to fatuous extremes. Those who enjoy such play are not necessarily bloodthirsty. For some, war games may even provide a sort of catharsis involving rejection of the real thing.

Still, we find it rather disquieting that after all this century's agonizing conflict quite a lot of people take pleasure in simulating the death struggle of opposed armies.

Blunders worse than crimes

The big, not to say the transcendent, mystery of the whole Watergate affair is why President Nixon and his Administration didn't conduct themselves or defend themselves with at least a smidgeon of intelligence.

All sorts of questions remain unanswered. Why, for example, the existence of the tapes in the first place?

Taping, as I was assured long ago by Supreme Court Justice Frank Murphy, who had been an Attorney General and therefore in a position to know, was done as far back as the Roosevelt Administration, and by some of the most sainted New Dealers. But you can be sure that no bigwig before Richard Nixon ever let the tape play on to record secret discussions involving matters that might bring discredit on those who knew the recorder was there.

Lyndon Johnson, if he had happened to discuss the Bobby Baker case or the "Landslide Lyndon" senatorial election which was won by a handful of late-reported and thoroughly questionable votes, assuredly would have switched off the button before indulging in or inviting certain comments.

Nixon knew all about the so-called Pumpkin Papers played in the Alger Hiss case. Why, then, did he authorize the recording of his own Pumpkin Papers?

A SECOND QUESTION is why didn't the White House stick to the national security justification for what it did? The Cubans who broke into Watergate did it for patriotic reasons.

In a world that has just watched the resignation of West Germany's Chancellor Willy Brandt because of a spy planted in his most intimate entourage, the theory that Fidel Castro was siming to bubvert the Democratic National Committee is certainly not far-fetched.

Granted that the Cubans and their recruiter, Howard Hunt, were doing something without benefit of legal police collaboration, the motive for the Watergate bugging was not an ignoble one. It was certainly several moral cuts above Daniel Ellsberg's decision to break his word about keeping the Pentagon Papers secret.

Somehow Nixon let the national security justification slide away from him. Why?

The country in the late Sixties and the early Seventies was the scene of violence that owed much to the writings of Chairman Mao and the example of that grand guerrilla of them all, Che Guevara.

As Thomas Charles Huston, no fool, explained it for White House benefit in his Huston Plan for penetrating organized pig-baiting and laboratory-burning groups, it was a reasonable assumption that wild card Communists such as the Trotskyites were trying to plant the first seeds of revolution.

Surely the White House had justification for worry. The attempt to frisk Ellsberg's psychiatrist of his papers was stupid, but, again, it was several moral cuts above Ellsberg's own leak of classified Pentagon documents.

Why, in view of the turbid state of the public mind in the last days of our Vietnam War participation, didn't the Nixon Administration create a backfire by issuing a White Paper on the rise and proliferation of the New Left in America?

Several historians — the names of Lewis Feuer and Edward J. Bacciocco, Jr. spring to mind — could have documented everything from the Berkeley Rebellion to the appearance (and disappearance) of the Weathermen to show the reason for White House trepidation about a possible drift into national paralysis.

ONE PROBABLE reason for Nixon's failure to defend himself is that he let a stuipid band of advertising account executives and fuzzy-cheeked legal striplings with no political experience push the intelligent Martin Andersons and Roger Freemans out of the White House.

Haldeman, Ehrlichman and John Dean had absolutely no feeling for the public relations requirements of politics. They acted like conspirators in an evil cause where there was actually no need to do so.

Nixon could have said Watergate and the Ellsberg break-in were motivated by the same concern for the nation's safety that Franklin D. Roosevelt showed when, with Earl Warren's blessing, he stuck the Japanese-American citizens in detention camps.

It is probably too late to urge national security considerations on impeachment-minded members of Congress. The momentum has been lost. But when the historians review this period in the 21st Century, they will marvel that an Administration could be so dumb.

Judge has tips for faster trials

By DEAN SCHOTT
Associated Press Writer

CARROLLTON, Ohio (AP) — The lone common pleas court judge in rural Carroll County has some answers for his colleagues in cities plagued by backlogs of civil suits.

Judge Paul Perkins, 64, said his proposals go to the heart of the problem in larger common pleas courts—bad management.

"My feeling is that the real problem is the failure, refusal or inability of judges to do business-like, administrative work," he said. "In other words, it's a production problem.

After three years on the bench, Perkins said he feels urban judges could speed that flow by appointing a master commissioner to conduct pre-trial hearings in civil cases.

He said judges now handle all their own pre-trials hearings, but they need not. A master commissioner could handle the pre-trials, obtain early settlements and relieve judges of the burden, he said.

"You can't leave the responsibility of the pre-trial hearings up to the judges," Perkins said. "They have got to give the authority to the commissioner to conduct really tough pre-trials.

"If they did, they would clean up the backlog faster and they wouldn't need more judges."

But he asked, "Why can't the judges get together and appoint a master commissioner in charge of all pre-trials and give him the responsibility?"

He thought he knew the answer. In the larger counties, he said, "If you got one judge who doesn't want it, then you got all the judges who are not going to do it."

He added, "You got to remember, I don't have all the problems they have. I don't have to work with 38 other judges who are all independent."

Perkins had another idea that has worked well for him.

He said the proposal would remedy "the total disregard for jurors in the management of courts."

In personal injury cases, he said, "I set it for jury trial on a date certain. Then I order the counsel to exchange final offers on a settlement.

"If they don't get serious until the trial and then settle it while the jury is waiting, I assess the cost for the 30 prospective jurors against the parties."

Perkins said he can assess the cost against either the lawyers for the plaintiff or defendant or both.

"Some attorneys say I don't have the authority," he said. "I tell them: 'Take it to the court of appeals.'"

He added, "When my order finally soaked in and it became apparent that it wasn't just another piece of paper, the lawyers really got serious about settling cases."

Here's the latest wrinkle in belly dancing debate

DEAR ABBY: Thank you for saying that belly dancing is a respected form of art. You're absolutely right. It's also marvelous exercise for toning up muscles and trimming off fat.

In our little town of Ashland, Ky. 50 of us are taking lessons in belly dancing at the YWCA. And we're considered part of the Bible belt.

ANITA HOWERTON

DEAR ANITA: Since belly dancing originated in the Middle East during Biblical times, it's entirely appropriate that it should be taught in the Bible belt.

Let's hear it from Suzanne Hunsucker, a reporter from the Coloradoan in Fort Collins, Colorado. She visited a belly dancing class sponsored by the Parks and Recreation Deaprtment because belly dancing had become a gut issue in that community, and she wanted to get the straight dope. She wrote:

"One middle-aged student said, 'There's nothing sexy about it. Anyone watching us sweat it out would hardly get aroused. It's exhausting physical exercise. At first it nearly killed me. I started using parts of my body I never knew I had. However, soon I got to know my body and began talking to my joints.'

The instructor said, 'I notice a real change in the women taking the class. They become much freer in their movements after a while. When they dance, they lift up their heads and smile.'

"Who knows", wrote the reporter, "with inhibitions being shed and bellies being strengthened, Fort Collins may someday be the belly dancing capital of the West."

Wait there's more: From New Orleans came a feature story published in the states-Items by Rosemary Ruiz a reporter who actually joined a belly dancing class to get some firsthand information about it. She wrote:

"Until now, belly dancing has always had a certain seedy aura about it, seldom suggesting anything more refined than a carnival hoochy koochy dance, but lately the dance has enjoyed a surge of popularity. I got my best friend and sister-in-law to enroll with me. We were relieved to sees ourselves duplicated in other students, ordinary co-eds and housewives ranging in age from 18 to 55. All quite sheepish about it.

My daughter thinks it's hilarious,' said one.

I told my husband I was taking ballet,' says another.

My husband is a school principal,' said Lucille V., 'so I'm futhuring my education.' She laughs, but comes back in five minutes to add quite soberly, 'Actually I also own Arabian horses and am very interested in the Arabic culture. Please put that in.'

I'll buy that.

DEAR ABBY: We in the dancing profession commend you for upholding the dignity of belly dancing. It's the name that so many people find offensive. The dance is beautiful when artistically performed. I wish they could change the name to Oriental dancing."

If you think it's easy-like the hula, just try to move the upper half of your body while keeping the lower half perfectly still. Then try to move the lower half of your body and keep the upper half still.

I'll bet you can't do it.

TARA FROM ISTANBUL

DEAR TARA: You're right. I tried and couldn't. But you gave me an idea. I think I'll take some lessons. (Privately, of course.)

TV Viewing

By JAY SHARBUTT
AP Television Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — Public and commercial broadcasters are waiting with bated breaths, microphones and cameras to learn when the House impeachment hearings go public. But it's doubtful this will be the week.

The CBS, NBC and ABC television networks initially thought this Tuesday would be the day. Then they hoped for Thursday. Now they simply are waiting and making no forecasts.

But when the House hearings are opened to the public, they'll be offered in full or in part to the nation's 2,689 network or public radio stations and at least 844 public or network-affiliated TV stations.

The networks, serving a total of 610 commercial TV stations, say they'll still rotate live coverage responsibility among themselves, with ABC covering the first day, CBS the second and NBC the third.

In addition, CBS-TV says when developments warrant, it will air half-hour or hour-long summary reports at 11:30 p.m. EDT on those days it hasn't the primary live coverage responsibility.

NBC-TV says it's considering a similar approach but nothing is definite yet. ABC-TV says it has tentative plans for primetime summary reports when it feels hearing developments warrant them.

The Public Broadcasting Service, serving 234 TV stations, says it won't go "live," but will videotape each day's public hearings in full and offer it the same night at 8 p.m. EDT.

On the radio side, only CBS with 245 stations, and the National Public Radio system, with 164 outlets, say they'll carry the hearings live. CBS will interrupt its coverage for its regular hourly news broadcasts.

NBC, serving 230 radio stations, and ABC, serving 1,400, both say they'll offer brief special reports during the day, but won't go live except when they feel circumstanced demand it.

NBC says it'll also offer a special 3½-minute wrapup on the hearings at 5:45 p.m. EDT and again an hour later if necessary.

The Mutual Broadcasting System says it won't offer live coverage, opting to put hearing developments in its regular news feeds to its 650 affiliates.

It says it'll also offer them a nine-minute special hearings report at 2:15 p.m. EDT and a 14-minute report at 5:35 p.m. EDT.

Salem girl enters Miss Ohio contest

WARREN, Ohio (AP)—Sharon Ann Wolfe, 21, of Salem, will represent a six-county area in Miss Ohio competition June 16-22.

Miss Wolfe, a senior at Youngstown State University, was crowned Miss Warren Saturday night after winning bathing suit and evening gown competition.

Sowle resignation fought by board

ATHENS, Ohio (AP)—The Ohio University Board of Trustees say they will ask university president Dr. Claude R. Sowle to reconsider his decision to resign.

The board in a statement issued Sunday night said Dr. Sowle had its full support, and asked him to reconsider.

Sowle, in a surprise announcement Sunday, told trustees Chairman William Morris that "the mindless destructive events of the past week have convinced me that I should no longer ask myself and my family to serve the university under such insane conditions.

"Universities are among the most fragile institutions in our society," Sowle said. "It is unfortunate that in such a setting, the dedicated selfless efforts of so many can be nullified by the senseless acts of so few."

The last nine days have been repeated instances of violence or disruption on the OU campus.

Two nights of rioting in Athens city streets May 11 and 12 resulted in 38 arrests, injuries to both students and police, looted shops and smashed windows.

The weekend incidents were followed by a confrontation Tuesday between Sowle and a group of black students on the OU campus. The students, who said they were protesting the lack of minority oriented entertainment and academic programs, refused to listen to him in a meeting, however, the president said.

Sowle said as he left the meeting he was "physically abused with shoving and pushing," and said it was the worst abuse he had taken since becoming president.

On Wednesday, students gave him a list of six demands. On Thursday, they followed with a list of 51 demands, which they said had to be fulfilled within 24 hours and which included lowering of university fees, resignation of some top administrators and a democratically elected board of regents.

"It is shocking that, in a university particularly, such a strong and talented person can be driven to the point that he feels compelled to resign," Culbert said.

Edward Tenson, vice president for academic affairs, said the office of university president "has become a magnet for abuse, and attack, and demands and demands and demands.

"Those of us who have worked with him closely have been wondering for a long time how he takes it," Tenson said.

Issue sanctions against district

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Education Association has issued sanctions against the Mentor School District in a local teachers' dispute.

The OEA accused the board of bad faith negotiating and of cutting back educational programs and teaching staffs.

The sanctions serve to notify teachers associations across the state that Mentor is an "undesirable place to teach," the OEA said in a statement issued Saturday.

Washington Report

By REP. WILLIAM H. HARSHA

In spite of all its pontificating about congressional reform, when the Democratic majority of Congress was finally confronted with a viable reform proposal for the archaic and cumbersome House committee system, it voted overwhelmingly to send these badly needed changes to yet another committee for further study.

Most Washington watchers know what that means: this action is sure to weaken and quite possibly kill the congressionaly reform package for at least another year.

It has been some 28 years since there was a major overhaul of the House committee system, and that reform in 1946 was one of the first changes at all since Congress convened in 1789.

But Congress has come a long way in nearly three decades and the committees as structured then are not exactly geared to deal in the most effective manner with the more recent issues of this decade such as environmental protection, energy conservation and medical insurance.

Today, there are no less than 184 separate committees and subcommittees in the House. Many of them have overlapping responsibilities and all of them compete heavily for the precious legislative time of the Congressmen.

BASICALLY, the Bolling Committee (as it has been termed for its chairman) proposed that members generally have only one committee assignment as opposed to the two delegated to most now. This would both foster expertise among the members and also minimize schedule conflicts.

More often than not under the current system, a congressman on two committees finds his schedule full of different subcommittee meetings set for the same time, making it impossible for him to contribute effectively to the legislative matters considered in both.

Another feature, and probably the most controversial, was the Bolling Committee's recommendation that some committees be abolished or their workload lessened and that other new ones be created. The most vocal in opposing these suggestions which have much merit were those with the most seniority and power to lose.

For example, the Education and Labor Committee would be split into two separate committees. Considering the increasing need for legislative involvement in both of these important areas and the often highly complex nature of the issues considered, this is a rather logical decision. Had these reforms been in effect over the last few years, it might not have taken three years to have a minimum wage bill enacted, nor would Congress be struggling at the eleventh hour to pass a new federal aid to education bill before the end of the fiscal year.

ANOTHER EXAMPLE is the powerful Ways and Means Committee. It was originally meant to handle tax legislation, but it now controls about 20 per cent of all bills introduced in the House.

This includes exclusive control over all trade and employment compensation.

Some of these matters would be shifted to other committees for the sake of ensuring the most effective legislative process to deal with these vital domestic issues.

The House Public Works Committee, on which I serve as ranking minority member, would not escape this reform. No longer would it deal with water pollution control measures. That would be included in a new, badly needed Committee on Energy and Environment.

Having spent almost 14 years studying this matter and writing the strongest and most workable legislation to date on it, I would sorely miss the opportunity to deal directly on a committee with water pollution control legislation. However, in losing responsibility for this matter, the Public Works Committee would gain jurisdiction over all transportation matters including highway, air and rail, and I think this type of consolidation could only lead to a more comprehensive and better organized approach to the country's mobility problems.

OTHER REFORMS would give the minority party in Congress more equitable representation in staff assistance and establish a system of committee membership and leadership selection and budget authorizations prior to the beginning of a new Congress. Work has been traditionally held up for weeks as it stands now until these matters are first decided by the party caucuses and then by the full House.

These and other reforms would have strengthened the legislative process and made it more responsive to the needs of the public. From the likes of the vote by the Democratic Caucus, however, the only thing on their minds was making an outdated and overloaded committee system more responsive to the needs of its power hungry chairmen.

The shelving of the reform proposals was a disheartening and disgusting defeat for the American public and the good of its legislative process.

Eagles Auxiliary in CARE program

Eagles Auxiliary 423 has joined Eagle orginizations nationwide in an overseas aid program in cooperation with CARE, the international aid agency.

The Faternal Order of Eagles, with program headquarters in Milwaukee, Wis., has announced that a complex of vocational training workshops is being constructed in Nicaragua's earthquake rehibilitation area.

Under a partnership agreement between CARE and the Nicaraguan Ministry of Education, Fraternal Order of Eagles funds are being used to provide 20 to 30 workshops for machine, foundry, carpentry, masonry and sheetmetal training.

Esther McDaniel, president of the local Eagles Auxiliary chapter, said that the Eagles' plan for helping young people abroad consisted of providing essential training in crafts and survival skills.

The endeavor is consistent with a tradition of two decades in which the Eagles have established "Eagle House" CARE centers throughout the free world. The Nicaragua enterprise, the 27th in the series, will be part of the largest vocational training complex in Central America.

Miss Slavens, chalk artist, entertains at M-D dinner

The annual Mother-Daughter banquet of First Baptist Church was held Saturday evening in the social room of the church. The theme of the banquet was "Mother-A Portrait of Love" and it was sponsored by the board of deaconesses.

The tables were decorated with bowls of beautiful spring flowers with pink and blue candles in cyrstal holders at each end of the tables. Favors were small bottles of cologne and small bars of soap.

Miss Helen Slavens, a talented chalk artist, made several drawings and narrated them in a most interesting manner.

Dinner was prepared by the social committee of the church, of which Mrs. Harold DeWeese was chairman, and served by the Rev. Ralph Wolford, pastor, and the deacons. Mrs. John Baker gave the invocation. Following the meal, Mrs. Charles Hurtt, chairman of the board of deaconesses, extended greetings to all present, and read the poem, "Mother's Checkbook". She then asked each mother or daughter to introduce herself and guests. Mrs. Aaron Shipley sang three numbers and accompanied herself on the guitar.

Mrs. Chester Howell and her daughter, Starr, gave the welcome on behalf of the mothers and daughters. A humerous skit narrated by Mrs. Howell featured several little girls who modeled their mother's hats. Mrs. James Vess sang a solo accompanied by Mrs. Ralph Yerian at the piano.

Special recognition was given to the oldest and youngest mothers present, to the mothers having the most children, one who traveled the greatest distance, and to Mrs. DeWeese who supervised the planning of the dinner. All these ladies were presented with flower arrangements. Mrs. Ralph Wolford gave the benediction.

Jobless vet wants leg amputated

JUPITER, Fla. (AP) — A young Vietnam veteran who seeks a leg amputation that doctors won't give him is broke and jobless and considering going to jail so his family can get welfare payments.

Don Dagenhart, 22, says constant pain from a knee injury incurred in a Navy football game four years ago makes it impossible for him to hold a job. He wants an artificial limb, but a Veteran's Administration panel of three doctors says he should keep his leg.

Broke and jobless, Dagenhart faces eviction from his apartment. His telephone has been disconnected and even though his VA disability payments have been raised to $77 a month he has been forced to sell furniture to get money to support his wife Anne and their two-year-old son Craig.

"We got $10 for the baby's crib," says Mrs. Dagenhart, who cannot work because she suffers from phlebitis, an inflammation of the veins. "We're trying to hang on to the high chair so Craig will have a place to eat, but I don't know how long we can."

State welfare offers only token payment because Dagenhart is a veteran. Rep. Paul Rogers, D-Fla., has been asked to get him a 100 per cent disability allowance, but that will take time.

"We've been told to pay the back rent or get out," Dagenhart says. "The landlord wants money and I can't blame him."

He says if the landlord evicts him, "then I'll just have to do something to get thrown in jail. Then the welfare people will have to do something to help my wife and son. That's the important thing right now."

Dagenhart's disability payments were increased from $49 a month to $57 a month a year ago when he was recovering from two exploratory operations. But they were reduced to $49 again six months later.

He had five knee operations before his discharge in 1971, and early this year, the VA medical panel in Miami told Dagenhart he either could have the knee fused and the nerves killed; keep the knee and wear a leg brace, or amputate the leg and get an artificial one.

But after a re-examination in April, the panel eliminated amputation as an alternative and advised that he wear a leg brace.

Dr. Donald Peerson, who has operated on Dagenhart's leg, says, "I don't think he fully realizes the full implications of an above-the-knee amputation. The full leg brace would help him and I think, with careful planning, something could be done to repair the knee."

To that Dagenhart responds: "I want this over with. I've already had seven operations and the knee is just as bad off as when it was crushed. I've made up my mind I want it cut off."

Police study shows women doing well on D.C. force

WASHINGTON (AP) — Many of the men in blue don't agree, but women have joined Washington's finest with flying colors, says the Police Foundation.

A survey which compared the performance of 86 women patrol officers with that of 86 men showed "generally similar" results, the foundation said Sunday.

The report said that "women made fewer arrests and gave fewer traffic citations," but added it was not clear whether that was because they were too easy or simply that men are too tough.

It was clear, however, that many of the male officers aren't enthused about the presence of their women counterparts.

Typical of interviews, said the foundation, were these remarks:

"Most women panic easily ... Women are not aggressive and tend to lay back and act as a ride-along or report taker .... There aren't too many females who can handle themselves or situations when things get rough .... They belong in an office.

There were a few positive appraisals.

"I have found female officers to be more intelligent .... less quick to anger .... I feel the intelligence and commitment of several female officers to be in refreshing contrast to the crybaby attitude of many males."

Patrick V. Murphy, president of the private nonprofit foundation, said the findings "will be useful for police agencies nationwide" as they attempt to comply with federal law requiring equal employment opportunities for women.

In recent lawsuits, the Justice Department has accused several police departments of discriminating against women.

Northern U.S. cool, wet

By The Associated Press

The northern half of the nation was cool and wet today, while much of the southern half was hot and humid.

Snow and rain was scattered through the Rocky Mountains and Montana stockmen were warned to protect their livestock from the cold.

Thunderstorms spread from New Mexico through Georgia and the Carolinas.

A man died Sunday when his auto was swept into a rainswollen creek near Decatur, Ill., where almost six inches of rain fell within 24 hours. But no one was injured when a bus was washed off a highway.

Flash floods flooded the Decatur sewage plant and closed roads into the city for several hours.

East Liverpool water short

EAST LIVERPOOL, Ohio (AP)— Schools suspended classes and at least one industry ceased operations today because of a water shortage in this Ohio River city.

The problem began Friday night when the water intake pier in the river became clogged and no more water could be pumped into the city's reservoirs.

Water Supt. Rodney Stull said the three reservoirs were in danger of running dry before the intake could be cleared. He said divers would be sent down to try to remove the debris.

Meanwhile, Mayor Norman Bucher urged the city's more than 22,000 residents to conserve water.

Hall China Pottery, one of the city's biggest industries, closed today and classes were suspended at the nine public and Catholic schools in the city.

Stull said the city's largest reservoir, which normally holds about five million gallons of water, was down to about half a million gallons and the water supply also was down in the other reservoirs.

Cigarette proves lethal hazard

FORT WAYNE, Ind. (AP) — What happened to Mary Jo Place is beyond the health hazards warned of on cigarette packages.

Mrs. Place took a pistol from a drawer and went to investigate during the night when she thought she heard a prowler. Finding nothing unusual, she put the pistol on a nightstand and went back to bed.

Sunday morning she said she awoke, took out a cigarette, reached to the nightstand for the pistol-shaped lighter she keeps there and shot herself in the left hand.

Marsh challenges King leadership

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Milan Marsh, state Carpenter's union leader, was expected to announce for the presidency of the Ohio AFL-CIO today, challenging the 10-year reign of Frank King.

Marsh, of Youngstown, had scheduled a 9 a.m. news conference in Cleveland.

The convention is expected to bring to a head a power struggle that has continued for several months and involved the governor's office.

Gov. John J. Gilligan's executive assistant, Phillip R. Moots, denies that the governor's office is working for the ouster of Frank W. King as state AFL-CIO president.

But James N. Iafelice of Cleveland, president of the International Association of Machinists District 54 and a staunch supporter of King, charges angrily that Gilligan is interfering in union politics.

"In the whole history of labor," Iafelice said recently, "I don't recall another Ohio governor who interfered so much in the affairs of the union."

Leading the faction opposing King is Warren J. Smith, AFL-CIO state secretary-treasurer, who is running for re-election. Smith has circulated a 50-page statement opposing King's leadership.

Floyd Chapman of Massillon says he is backed by King and will oppose Smith for secretary-treasurer.

Chapman, financial secretary for United Steel Workers Local 1124, said Sunday he is backed "100 per cent" by King and will be nominated from the convention floor Thursday.

"It's time for a change," he declared.

Reports are that King will face a re-election challenge from either Milan March of Youngstown, a state Carpenters' union official, or William Sheehan, head of Cincinnati's AFL-CIO.

King said all the challenges still are unofficial.

Smith admits that friction between King, who is a former leader in the Ohio Senate, and Gilligan is part of the dispute but denies that the governor is involved in the anti-King movement.

"I have never talked to the governor about it," Smith said. "I don't think it would make a difference to the governor which man won. The labor movement is totally in support of the governor, no matter who is president."

Moots said the governor's office is keeping its hands off the AFL-CIO convention.

But he said there "has been a feeling among labor guys for some time that Frank (King) is following his own purposes and deals instead of representing the AFL-CIO."

He added that State Sen. Anthony Calabrese, who is the Senate Democratic leader, "has been very careful to do what Frank wants.

"The question asked by some of the members is whether Frank has been giving the kind of leadership to the AFL-CIO that it needs and wants," the governor's aide said.

"I think he always felt he is still in the Senate instead of being president of the AFL-CIO, and some of the members and delegates apparently resent this."

Drivers obey low speed limit

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio drivers are obeying the 55 miles per hour highway speed limit better than they did the higher speed limit, says state Highway Patrol Supt. Col. Robert Chiaramonte.

Chiaramonte said patrol surveys showed an average speed of 56.7 m.p.h. for cars and 54.9 m.p.h. for trucks.

Furthermore, he said, highway patrol records showed a six per cent reduction in highway accidents for the first four months of the year.

Giscard D'Estaing posts narrow win in French election

PARIS (AP) — Conservative Valery Giscard d'Estaing, for years the strict finance minister in France's Gaullist governments, has become the republic's 20th president in an election that could reduce friction between Paris and Washington.

Latest official figures gave Giscard d'Estaing a lead of only 371,814 votes out of more than 26 million cast, more than 87 per cent of the registered voters in the largest turnout ever in a French election.

Interior Minister Jacques Chirac declared Giscard d'Estaing elected Sunday night with 50.71 per cent of the vote, 1.5 per cent more than that Socialist Francois Mitterand received.

Foreign policy played almost no role in the free-wheeling, six-week election campaign.

But the first foreign notable to congratulate the new president was President Nixon in a protocol-breaking personal telephone call, which French newspapers viewed as an omen of an easing in prickly relations between the two nations.

Giscard d'Estaing has promised to make technical suggestions soon on European monetary problems and work towards eventual European unity in 1980.

The election mainly on France's severe economic problems, and also reflected apparent voter discontent with 16 years of Gaullist rule that ended with the death on April 2 of President Georges Pompidou. Giscard d'Estaing and Mitterrand eliminated the official Gaullist candidate, Jacques Chaban-Delmas, in balloting May 5.

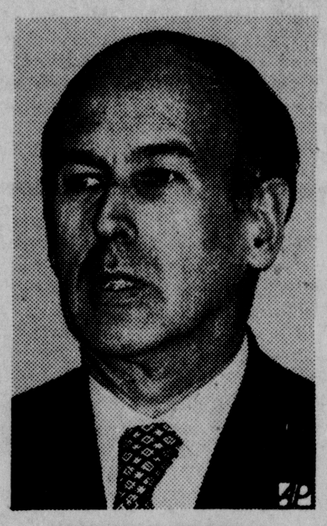
Giscard d'Estaing still will have to rely on what now appears to be a disproportionately large Gaullist bloc in the lower house of the National Assembly to support his government.

The 48-year-old presidentelect heads the Independent Republican party, junior partner of the Gaullists in the governing coalition since Gen. Charles de Gaulle founded the Fifth Republic and became its president in 1958.

He promised "change without risk" during the campaign and pledged to newsmen Sunday, while awaiting vote tabulations, that his government would provide startling changes.

Constitutionally, the formal proclamation of his election can take place at any time in the next 10 days. It is expected late this week, after which Giscard d'Estaing will name his prime minister to replace the caretaker prime minister, Pierre Messmer.

As the tight result was announced, leaders of all groups which supported



GISCARD D'ESTAING

Giscard d'Estaing warned that he must take into account that almost one Frenchman in two voted for the Socialist candidate, who had promised sweeping reforms and Communists in the government.

Opposition figures made a point of stressing their acceptance of the democratic process in conceding Giscard's victory.

Leftist leaders noted that Mitterarand drew converts to their cause, winning 4 per cent more votes than the total leftist vote in the first round.

Unions and extreme leftists indicated, however, that their patience would be very limited. Georges Seguy, Communist head of the largest union group, said his organization was ready to negotiate with government and management for "essential social demands" but that if these were not met "union action will force them to be."

Nation's 'duck cops' become concerned with big crime

WASHINGTON (AP) — The old Duck Cop of the Fish and Wildlife Service is turning into a sort of environmental G-Man.

Instead of big heroin or 10-most-wanted busts, the big case around the service's Law Enforcement Division is likely to be seizure of a cheetah-fur coat or a shipment of hawksbill turtle shell hair clips.

A single eagle tail feather is worth $50. A tiger skin coat recently was valued at $80,000. A pair of Nile crocodile shoes is worth $125, and a live perigrine falcon can be worth $10,000 to a falconry buff, the service says.

The division's stepped-up effort, says Director Clark Bavan, "has been necessary in part to focus on the large-scale traffickers and smugglers of wildlife."

The attraction for organized crime—besides the money —is the lesser risk, along with the comparatively light penalties Congress provided in its endangered species laws, Bertram Falbaum, division deputy director, says.

"If you can get $50,000, $100,000, $200,000, dealing in misdemeanor instead of felony crimes, why not?" says Falbaum. "We're convinced organized crime is involved."

To get on with its new responsibilities, the division is recruiting a mix of ex-FBI, Customs Bureau, police and military intelligence men. Falbaum used to run Customs' Operation Intercept against narctics traffic on the West Coast.

In the old days, the division was heavy with biologists and game warden-types who banded ducks and stalked hunters who shot more than their limit— thus the tag, Duck Cops.

But in recent years Congress has tightened up several species protection laws and added new ones, giving the added enforcement tasks to the division.

So far the service has confiscated goods worth $2 million by its estimate. The haul includes one stuffed Andean condor, 20,000 cans of sperm whale meat and 1,200 pairs of Nile crocodile shoes. Some 1,400 live alligator-like caimans are cooling it in a zoo until a division case against their shippers is settled

Weekend gun show crowd tops 1,800

More than 1,800 persons attended the Central Ohio Gun and Indian Relic Collectors Association May gun show at the Fayette County Fairground Saturday and Sunday.

Kenneth Craig, association president, said a total of 1,774 parked on the Fairground facilities for the gun show, but that parking was hampered due to heavy rains which hit the Fayette County area Friday night.

There were nearly 600 exhibitors, according to Craig.

A Washington C.H. man won the competition for the May show. The competition was for the best 1886 model Winchester rifle.

Deputies are presently investigating a report of a theft in which a metal box was stolen from a van owned by Donald P. DeVore, of Columbus, about 2:30 p.m. Saturday.

Devore told deputies the metal box contained about 500 pieces of "broken bank notes all of which were dated before 1864. All the articles were in plastic envelopes. He said the articles have no face value, but an unestimated collector's value.

A box owned by Chet Blayney, of Columbus, was stolen from beneath a display table located in the sheep barn about 10 p.m. Saturday, sheriff's deputies reported. The box contained about $20 worth of German badges, pins and war medals.

Valuable glass articles were also stolen from beneath a display table in the sheep barn sometime Saturday. Deputies said the articles, valued at $360, were owned by Richard Clear, of Dayton.

The next gun show will be held June 22-23, Craig said.

Rickenbacker, born in Columbus Oct. 8, 1890, died July 21 in Zurich, Switzerland, at the age of 82.

Handstand by youth brings fall, death

Police said the boy tried a handstand today on a window ledge at his school. He fell 37 feet to the ground and died three hours later in a hospital.

Soviet crop plantings progress

WASHINGTON (AP) — Fears a month ago that the Soviet Union was far behind in planting of spring crops seem to have dissipated, according to a new analysis published today by the Agriculture Department.

As of May 6, the report said, Soviet farmers had planted 156.4 million acres of spring crops, only about one week behind the "excellent progress" a year earlier when 1973 planting was under way.

Roger S. Euler, who specializes in Communist-area agriculture for the department's Economic Research Service, called the new report encouraging.

"It's an improving situation as far as planting in the Soviet Union is concerned," Euler told a reporter. "As we said last month, it was quite early then to be making predictions."

In April, the Soviet press raised questions about crop planting for 1974 harvests and said poor weather and inefficiency on farms were contributing to the delay.

At that time, only 41.6 million acres had been planted, compared with 107.2 million on the same date, April 22, a year earlier. In today's report, Soviet farmers were shown to have narrowed the gap sharply with the 156.4 million acres planted on May 6, compared with 199.6 million a year earlier.

"These comparisons suggest that 1974 seeding progress thus far may be near normal," the report said. "That is, progress in 1972 and 1973, but particularly in 1973, was unusually rapid because of favorable weather, and the larger than normal amount of seeding was due to reduced winter grain areas."

A Jamestown man was injured when he was "mugged" while leaving a Jeffersonville bar early Sunday morning, the Sheriff's Department reports.

Officers said Eddie Leon Dailey, 28, was "jumped" by two unidentified men, while walking through an alley near the Pub Bar.

The incident occurred at 12:30 a.m. Sunday.

Firebomb linked to Cincy strike

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — No one was injured and damage slight when a small firebomb exploded Sunday night at one of the four Cincinnati theaters being picketed over a wage dispute.

The incendiary device burst into flames at the Ambassador Theater, police said. Projectionists who crossed picket lines earlier in the day were threatened by picketers, according to police.

The strike was called by four members of the Cincinnati chapter of the International Association of Motion Picture Operators. They seek a $5 a day pay hike.

Mideast peace details ironed out

DAMASCUS, Syria (AP) — Details of a general agreement to separate Israeli and Syrian forces on the Golan Heights began trickling out today as Secretary of State Henry Kissinger arrived for discussions with Syrian leaders to overcome the few remaining obstacles.

A senior American official said a buffer zone separating the two armies will vary in depth from less than half a mile to a little over one mile.

According to this official, Israel has agreed to permit Syrian policemen to re-enter towns and villages within the demilitarized zone along with Syrian civilians.

Newsmen also were told on the one-hour flight from Jerusalem that verification of the thinning out of armor immediately behind the disengagement lines would not cause a problem because the distances involved are not great.

Now in the 22nd day of his marathon peace mission, Kissinger brought to Damascus Israel's approval of his proposals to separate the opposing forces, which the Israeli negotiating team gave Sunday.

With agreement on the troublesome question of a separation line, the focus of negotiations now is expected to shift toward such problems as the composition of a United Nations contingent to man a buffer zone between the opposing forces, the thinning out of firepower and an exchange of war prisoners.

Kissinger said he expected to remain in the Middle East at least until Friday, shuttling almost daily between the two countries. He scheduled his eighth session today with Syrian President Hafez Assad and Foreign Minister Abdel Halim Khaddam in Damascus.

He returns to Jerusalem in the evening to meet with Premier Golda Meir and other Israeli leaders.

"You can assume this will be the pattern" over the next few days, said Robert Anderson, a State Department spokesman.

Informed sources said the Kissinger compromise centered on U.N. control of the peak of Mt. Hermon, with Israeli and Syrian units maintaining positions along the slopes. It also was said to include the return of the city of Quneitra to Syrian civilian authority and Israeli withdrawal from three abandoned Arab villages in the Quneitra area, which is just behind the cease-fire lines drawn after the 1967 Arab-Israeli war.

The sources said that under the plan, the United States would help guard against violations by inspecting Israeli and Syrian troop movements and equipment in the contested region.

Kissinger discussed the disengagement details and related problems with Mrs. Meir and other members of the Israei negotiating team for three hours Sunday. The cabinet met earlier.

The usually well-informed Israeli newspaper Haaretz said Israel's military leaders were insisting that artillery be limited to medium-range guns on either side of the proposed buffer zone. The paper said this would prevent Jewish settlements from being shelled over the heads of U.N. troops.

President needs successes to build image, Ford says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vice President Gerald R. Ford says that if moves to impeach President Nixon are defeated, the President then would need successes in foreign and domestic policy to recover lost public support.

"I think if the President and Henry Kissinger are successful in the Middle East ... and I think the prospects are fairly encouraging, I think that would be most helpful," Ford said in an interview with The Associated Press.

He said the public's views "move back and forth very quickly and there still is no better issue for any President than peace, particularly if they have the impression that he is the principal architect of it."

Dramatic success in domestic issues would be more difficult "because you don't turn a spigot and end inflation," said the vice president.

But, he added, "If the economy stays strong, if unemployment doesn't go up, if people are feeling happier about their economic prospects, I think that would help, but not as dramatically as something involving peace."

Ford said he thinks the odds are about even that the House Judiciary Committee will vote to impeach the President. But he said he still believes the House will reject an impeachment resolution.

Ford said April 15, 1970, that "an impeachable offense is whatever a majority of the House of Representatives considers it to be at a given moment in history."

At the time, Ford was Republican leader of the House and was pushing for the impeachment of Supreme Court Associate Justice William O. Douglas.

Ford advocated then that "a higher standard is expected of federal judges than of any other 'civil officers' of the United States...."

As for the allegations against President Nixon, Ford said "the weight of the evidence overwhelmingly indicates to me the President neither knew of the Watergate break-in (and) ... he had no knowledge of the cover-up until Dean told him on March 21.

"Now you can take certain excerpts and I guess a skillful lawyer could build a case. But if you take all of the evidence, in my judgment, the overwhelming weight of the evidence is in favor of the President."

Paper now made from corn starch

CHICAGO (AP) — A new method for making paper from corn starch was recently reported in Prairie Farmer, one of the nation's leading rural magazines.

The magazine says chemists at the USDA Northern Regional laboratory in Peoria Ill., have developed the corn starch derivative as a stable ready-to-use liquid. Paper made from this particular type of starch can be recycled, thus conserving timber and reducing cost.

Street, road work on week's agenda

A number of projects have been scheduled this week by city street, state highway and county road work crews.

Members of the city street department will be restriping Washington Avenue, installing a sewer line on Jupiter Street and clearing debris from Friday night's thunderstorm in addition to the usual mowing chores, according to Bill Duncan, general foreman.

Gene Fitzpatric, superintendent of the Ohio Department of Transportation garage in Fayette County, said the state highway department crews will be mowing along guardrails, repairing a backhoe in preparation for ditching projects on I-71 and U.S. 35-S, crack-sealing on Ohio 734, east of Jeffersonville and U.S. 35-S, dispatching trash crews to roadside parks and repairing the median strip and shoulder on I-71 damaged by winter automobile accidents.

LATER this week, Fitzpatric said the state highway department workers will be preparing for the Memorial Day holiday weekend.

The state highway crews will be manning a service patrol starting Friday night on I-71 and assisting with the establishment of coffee break stops at parks along the interstate highway.

Charles P. Wagner, Fayette County engineer, said county road workmen will be clearing debris from Friday night's storm, patching York Road in Perry Township and Cook-Yankeetown Road in Madison Township and continuing a drainage project on the Washington-Waterloo Road.

Increases noted in jobless aid

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)—Increases were recorded last month in the number of cases of aid for families with unemployed fathers, the Ohio Department of Welfare reports.

Charles Bates, the agency's director, said there were 315 more persons in the category in April than in the previous month.

At the same time, the agency reported a continuing downtrend in the number of Aid to Dependent Children recipients.

Bates said there were 497,173 AC recipients in April 2,226 less than in March.

The decreasing trend began in December, Bates said, and since then 6,565 cases have been dropped.

Divine power heals, Science speaker says

"There is a divine power that supports and heals mankind," was the theme of a lecture given here Sunday by Charles W. Ferris, C.S.B., of Minneapolis.

"There seems to be a lot going on in the world," Ferris said, "that refutes the existence of this good power called God. But the life and beauty and goodness we do see is evidence of such a creative supporting power, that is, evidence of God. And as we study to perceive what He really is, we begin to experience His power in our lives."

Ferris, a member of The Christian Science Board of Lectureship, spoke under the auspices of First Church of Christ Scientist in the church edifice at 504 E. Temple St. He was introduced by Mildred Howell, First Reader.

Soviet activist faces auto trial

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Soviet Jewish activist faces trial in Moscow for allegedly running down the daughter of a Soviet official, although hospital records disclosed here say the girl jumped in front of his car in a suicide attempt.

A spokesman for the Union of Councils for Soviet Jews said the case illustrates a pattern of Soviet authorities bringing "trumped-up" criminal charges against dissidents, apparently to avoid adverse Western reaction to political trials.

Photographic copies of the hospital documents, which the Washington-based organization said it obtained from Soviet dissident sources, were made available to The Associated Press.

Charged in the incident is Victor Polsky, 44, an engineer-physicist who has been refused permission to emigrate to Israel because Soviet authorities said he had access to secret information when he headed a laboratory developing X-ray equipment.

Polsky has signed petitions, has been arrested for participating in demonstrations and has led protest delegations to Soviet officials, the Jewish group said.

"I think if he goes to trial his chances of being acquitted or even getting a light sentence are very slim," said Louis Rosenblum, who visited Polsky three weeks ago in Moscow and learned of the indictment against him through overseas telephone contact.

The investigation into Polsky's case was to be completed by today. His trial was expected to follow shortly.

Polsky could get up to three years in prison if convicted of running down 19-year-old Tatyana Alexandrovna Zhukova, an employe of the Communist party committee for the Bauman district of Moscow.

The girl's father works for the Soviet Interior Ministry, which oversees granting of exit visas to Jews, while her mother is employed by the Communist party's city committee, Rosenblum said.

According to dissident sources, immediately following the nighttime accident March 25, both the girl and her parents, with whom she had been walking, told a policeman that Polsky was not at fault.

County school board to act on personnel items

Personnel matters will top the agenda for members of the Fayette County Board of Education at the regular semi-monthly meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday.

Superintendent Guy M. Foster said the board will be re-employing non-certificated personnel such as custodians, school bus drivers, cooks and secretaries; offering supplemental contracts for coaching positions, head teachers and counselors, and re-employing the school's psychologist and speech and hearing therapist.

Foster said board members will be approving a list of candidates for graduation ceremonies at Miami Trace High School, reviewing a proposed dress code for high school students, establish a date for the opening of bids for new school buses and hear requests for attendance at professional meetings in addition to handling routine and miscellaneous items.

Ohio could get job training cash

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U. S. Department of Labor reports Ohio could get $64.4 million in job training money if Congress approves recommendations from the agency's head, Peter J. Brennan.

Brennan said in a statement that Ohio would get $58.2 million for fiscal 1975 for classroom and on-the-job work training, job counseling and placement.

The state would get another $6.2 million for public service jobs in areas of high unemployment, he said.

Brennan said the Ohio money is part of $1.5 billion recommended by the labor department for release to the 50 states and 350 local governments.

Controversy continues in time trials

A. J. Foyt takes Indy pole spot

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A.J. Foyt is on the pole, the field is completed and all appears ready for Sunday's 58th running of the Indianapolis 500-mile auto race ... but it might not be so.

Saturday, Foyt sat and watched 11 futile efforts to overtake his qualifying speed of 191.632 miles per hour, set May at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway.

The 39-year-old Texan will be a strong sentimental favorite to win at Indy for an unprecedented fourth time.

Saturday's final session of time trials was marred by a rain delay of three hours and 37 minutes, but the final 18 spots in the starting field were filled and the day's two slowest cars were bumped from the lineup.

Action also developed after 6 p.m. qualifications ended. The Speedway reportedly was considering a proposal that an unprecedented 12th row of three cars be added to the starting lineup and the protesting group was considering legal action if a compromise was not worked out.

After the trials closed, owners, drivers and team representatives from nine of 11 cars waiting in line to qualify rushed Speedway officials and demanded a chance to take their four-lap, 10-mile trials runs.

A protest was filed with Speedway stewards on bealf of the nine cars and was rejected. The protesting group said the Speedway's entry form promised each driver at least one chance to qualify and they said they had been denied that.

Speedway officials said the rules had been adhered to, and that reopening qualifications would not be fair to the 33 drivers who had qualified and the two knocked from the lineup by faster drivers.

Then, the protesting group was told by Speedway officials the matter could be reconsidered if they could get signed affidavits from a representative of each of the cars in the starting field and the two alternates which would free the Speedway from possible legal action if trials were resumed.

At the request of the parties involved, the deadline for getting those affidavits to Speedway officials was extended from 11 a.m. Sunday to noon today.

By Sunday afternoon, the group—now down to six cars— said it had 13 signed affidavits and verbal agreement from a representative of each of the 33 starters except the slowest driver in the field, rookie Larry Cannon.

Cannon, who missed out under similar circumstances last year, said he would not sign. But the protesting group remained hopeful.

Wright Hugus Jr., an attorney and an associate in one of the racing teams involved, then took a proposal to Speedway Vice President Joe Cloutier that would add a 12th row to the field.

Under the proposal, the two alternate cars—driven by Jigger Sirois and Denny Zimmerman—automatically would be put in the 12th row and the other spot would go up for grabs among the six entries Hugus represented.

Hugus said that if an agreement could not be reached, "at 12:01, we could go to the federal district court for an injunction against the race. We could file a class action suit involving all the cars not yet qualified.

"But that is just one of a number of remedies (to the situation)," Hugus added, "and I hope it doesn't come to that."

The only driver to come close to Foyt during the qualifying runs was Johnny Rutherford, who drove his Offenhauser-powered McLaren to an average speed of 190.446 m.p.h. But Rutherford will start on the inside of the ninth row because he lost his chance to qualify in the first session when a blown engine kept him from getting into line before the deadline that day.

Among the other Saturday qualifiers were defending champion Gordon Johncock, 1969 winner Mario Andretti, defending national driving champion Roger McCluskey, two-time Indy winner Al Unser, and comeback-minded Salt Walther.

Johncock, whose car was approved by USAC officials after being impounded for several hours to test the legality of the turbocharger, and Andretti made it into the second row beside Mike Mosley.

Reds hand Astros ninth loss

HOUSTON (AP) — Cincinnati Reds' Manager Sparky Anderson says future opponents better not take Houston lightly despite the Astros' present miseries.

Anderson commented Sunday after the Reds had whipped the Astros 7-1 and extended Houston's losing streak to nine games, one short of the team's all-time record.

"Houston's personnel is too good for this to keep going much longer," Anderson said. "Things are just not going right for them. Somebody is going to pay for all this."

Don Gullett pitched a five-hitter in handing Houston its latest loss. The Reds used a three run first inning to launch their eighth victory in the last 10 games.

Tony Perez had a home run, a double and a single in leading the Cincinnati attack on Houston starter Dave Roberts and three relievers.

"I felt strong all the way. I had all my pitches going for me," said Gullett who struck out 10 and walked only one in boosting his record to 4-3.

The only run Gullett allowed was Lee May's seventh home run of the season in the fourth inning.

After Roger Metzger led off the first inning with a single, Gullett allowed only a walk to Doug Rader until May hit his two-out homer in the fourth.

The other three Astros' hits were Tommy Helms' single in the fifth, Rader's single in the sixth and Bob Watson's single in the ninth. With the exception of May's homer, Gullett allowed no Houston runner to reach second base.

The Reds jumped on Roberts, 5-5, for three hits and three runs in the first inning. Johnny Bench doubled in Joe Morgan, who had walked, and Bench scored on a passed ball by Houston catcher Cliff Johnson. Singles by Perez and George Foster accounted for another run.

Perez hit his eighth homer in the third, and the Reds picked up two more runs in the sixth on a single by Dan Driessen and Gullett's roller that got by Rader at third. The Reds' final run came in the seventh on consecutive doubles by Perez and Foster.

Gullett said Houston is the kind of team "that can break out any minute." Astros Manager Preston Gomez must be wondering when that minute is going to arrive. Willie McCovey has tied Hank Aaron's record. No, not that record. The other one.

Still 305 short of Aaron's career record of 721 home runs, McCovey pulled even with Atlanta's superstar Sunday in the category of career grand slams.

McCovey's 15th bases-loaded homer came in the midst of the San Diego Padres' 10-7, 12-inning victory over San Francisco in the second game of a doubleheader. The Giants won the opener, 8-2.

The home run gave the Padres a temporary 5-3 lead in the fifth inning before a myriad of turns and twists finally settled the four-hour, 19-minute affair.

In Sunday's other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds bombed the Houston Astros 7-1; the Atlanta Braves turned back the Los Angeles Dodgers 4-2; the St. Louis Cardinals nipped the Chicago Cubs 6-5; the Montreal Expos took a doubleheader from the New York Mets, 7-4 and 5-0 and the Philadelphia Phillies and Pittsburgh Pirates split a pair. The Phillies won the first game 3-2 and the Pirates took the second, 2-1.

Braves 4, Dodgers 2

Hank Aaron and Dave Johnson singled home runs in a three-run first inning and Buzz Capra made them stand up with a five-hitter in Atlanta's victory over Los Angeles.

Cardinals 6, Cubs 5

Ted Simmons' eighth-inning double scored Bake McBride with the run that gave St. Louis its victory over Chicago.

Expos 7-5, Mets 4-0

Ken Singleton's tie-breaking double in the fifth inning capped a rally that lifted Montreal over New York in the first game of their doubleheader. Ernie McAnally hurled a fourhitter to give Montreal its second-game victory.

Phillies 3-1, Pirates 2-2

Larry Bowa's two-run double in the eighth inning rallied Philadelphia to victory in the opener, while Jerry Reuss pitched a six-hitter and Willie Stargell doubled home the winning run for Pittsburgh in the nightcap.

Little Current scores Preakness upset win

BALTIMORE (AP) — Little Current scored a smashing seven-length upset victory in the 99th running of the Preakness Stakes, a race typical of the entire season for 1974's crop of 3-year-old horses.

Before the chestnut colt crossed the finish line Saturday in 1:54 3-5, the third fastest time in Preakness history, Destroyer, Silver Florin, Jolly Johu and Cannonade had held the lead in Pimlico's 1 3-16 mile classic.

Cannonade, the Kentucky Derby winner who was seeking to repeat Secretariat's 1973 feat as a Triple Crown champion, was in front momentarily as the 13 horses entered the stretch.

But Little Current, a 13-1 choice ridden by Miguel Rivera, bolted through a hole along the rail and drew steadily away down the stretch. Neapolitan Way, another longshot at 24-1, overtook Cannonade and finished second.

It was only the second victory in eight stake races this year for the horse. He won the Everglades at Hialeah on March 20, then finished out of the money in the Flamingo, Blue Grass and Kentucky Derby.

The battle to determine the top 3-year-old probably will remain scrambled into the fall. And, the continuing inconsistency could entice a few owners to enter their horses in the Belmont Stakes, the last of the Triple Crown series on June 8.

Little Current, who was fifth in the Derby, and Cannonade are certain entries for the 1½ mile Belmont. Neapolitan Way will be made a supplementary entry, provided there are no after-effects from the cut suffered Saturday on his left hind leg.

Other probable Belmont starters include Hudson County, the Derby runner-up who finished eighth in the Preakness, and All Game, No. 12 in the Preakness and the only horse to finish ahead of Buck's Bid who tossed jockey Donald MacBeth at the gate.

Flyers bounce Bruins in Stanley Cup finale

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Philadelphia has ceased to be a bad sports joke. The implausible Philadelphia Flyers are champions of the National Hockey League, owners of the biggest prize in hockey—the Stanley Cup.

The Flyers, only seven years old, became the first expansion team to win the storied Cup, and their amazing drive to the title surprised even their coach. They completed the job Sunday with a 1-0 victory over the mighty Boston Bruins.

"If someone asked me at the beginning of the season, if I thought this team would win the Stanley Cup, I'd have said they were crazy," said weary Flyers Coach Fred Shero. "I wasn't even thinking of first place. I didn't think this team would work this hard."

The tough, young Flyers closed out the Bruins on national television, 4-2, in the best-of-seven game series. Rick MacLeish tipped in the only goal of the game at 14:48 of the first period off a drive from just inside the blue line by Andre Dupont.

"I have been around a long time," said Shero, "long enough to know that this is a team that may never be duplicated. They gave you all you asked for, and if you wanted more they came up with it."

Shero was trying to say that the Flyers don't have the talent of the New York Rangers, who they eliminated 4-3 in the semifinals, and aren't in a class personnel-wise with Boston. They won because they were the hungriest team in the playoffs.

Coach Sam Bell promised his squad would be "a factor" in national competition next month, citing teamwork as the key to Indiana's thinclad success last Saturday. Indiana ran up 150 points, easily outdistancing Michigan, its nearest competitor, which finished with 64.

Wilson going to state meet

BELLAIRE — Setting a new school record with a leap of 21' 9¾", Washington Senior High's Chuck Wilson topped the long jump field in Saturday's class AA district meet at Bellaire High School. With his winning leap, the senior trackster earned the right to advance to the state competition at Ohio State University this Saturday.

In class AAA district competition at Upper Arlington, Miami Trace's Ron Warnock tossed the shot put 46' 10". However, his effort was not enough, as he failed to place.

Aeros capture World Cup

HOUSTON (AP) — Gordie Howe says winning the World Hockey Association's World Cup with his two sons is the thrill of his career and the city's fans agree—it's their first pro championship in 13 years.

Houston's Aeros ended the championship series with a 6-2 victory over the outmanned Chicago Cougars Sunday night to sweep the finals in four straight games and this unlikely hockey city went wild.

The Aeros rammed in three goals in each of the first two periods, with two goals each by Murray Hall and Larry Lund and four assists by Gordie Howe, and then sparred for the final period.

"We're No. 1" and "Goodbye cougars" rang out from the standing room only crowd of 9,874 early in the first period and increased in intensity as the game progressed.

The Aeros in only their second season became Houston's first pro championship team since the Oilers won the American Football League championship Dec. 24, 1961.

Howe, 46, a National Hockey Association Hall of Famer and holder of many NHL records said he'd have to put the World Cup trophy at the top of the list.

BIG WHEEL — Electricians look tangled in the web of what is billed as the largest ferris wheel in North America, as they work at Cedar Point Amusement Park in Sandusky.

Foreign steel can't plug U.S. gap

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Industry Week magazine said today prices of imported steel are up and availability is down, meaning that "steel users can't lean heavily on imports to fill their needs."

Despite continuing high demand for steel in this country, steel imports in the first quarter totaled only 2,548,901 net tons compared to 3,856,510 net tons a year ago.

"As the availability of foreign steel shrank, the price of imported steel rose," the weekly trade publication reported. "Average value of steel imports...in March was $254.33 per net ton compared with $174.76 in March of last year."

Meanwhile, strong worldwide demand boosted U.S. steel exports in March to 502,733 net tons, highest monthly level since August 1970, IW reported.

The magazine said steelmakers "who have just opened order books for August delivery say there is not the slightest indication of a slackening in demand."

Mill production continues at capacity levels. IW estimated production at U.S. mills for the week ended May 18 at 2,913,000 net tons, down slightly from the preceding week.

IW said the price of scrap continued to drop. The magazine's price composite on top grade steelmaking scrap was $94 last week, compared with $104 the preceding week.

Lottery deposits eyed by board

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— State lottery commissioners probably will decide by early summer where and how to deposit millions of dollars of lottery money, a spokesman said.

The spokesman said two Cleveland banks, Cleveland Trust and Central National Bank of Cleveland, already have submitted detailed proposals for handling the cash.

The spokesman said the commissioners still must decide how much a central bank will be paid, and how soon the money will be forwarded to the state treasury.

Brownouts avoidable, firms claim

By The Associated Press

Americans won't have to swelter through the summer to avoid power cutbacks or brownouts, but utility officials say people will have to use electricity wisely if they want to prevent problems.

An Associated Press survey showed that electric companies expect to have enough power to satisfy summer demands, barring unforeseen breakdowns or abnormally hot weather.

They urge conservation, however, and say high electricity prices, caused by higher fuel costs, may help cut usage.

Robert Rives, a spokesman for the Kansas Gas & Electric Co., said, "We have adequate facilities and fuel to take care of people's needs, but we think they should use it wisely."

Several utilities said they had extra reserve capacity. A spokesman for Commonwealth Edison of Chicago said, "Our reserve will be 16 per cent. The reserve normally is 14 per cent." He said the extra capacity is the result of a "slowdown in electrical growth. In past years there has been an electrical growth of 5 or 6 per cent a year, but so far this year, it's not growing at all."

A spokesman for the Public Service Co. of Colorado said the power situation looked good for summer.

Consolidated Edison Co. of New York reported two more extra generating units this year than last. But the company was forced to make a voltage cutback last Friday when the temperature hit 92 degrees. Some equipment was out of service because of repairs and maintenance by company workmen trying to get things ready for summer.

Spokesmen for the New England Power Pool said the only chance of brownouts this summer would be if the weather turned hot at the same time plants were shut down for maintenance.

Officials said it would cost about $19 more to air condition one room in Massachusetts this summer than it did last year, but they said they didn't know whether the cost increase would be enough to cut consumption.

Bicycle ride

Washington Senior High School. He completed the entire course in 70 minutes, only 54 of which were after the riders were free to set their own pace outside the city limits.

Laytart, 609 E. Market St., will receive a trophy for his achievement. He can place it right next to the one he captured last year when he toured the course more rapidly than any of the other 40 entrants. His time last year was 65 minutes.

Coordinated by the Epilson Sigma Alpha Sorority, of Washington C.H. the Million Dollar Bike ride has raised funds for St. Jude's Children's Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

The hospital, founded by entertainer Danny Thomas, is the world's only facility which is solely dideicated to the research and treatment of catastrophic childhood disease.

The amount raised will not be known until the riders collect the money from their sponsors and turn it in at their respective schools or the Fayette County Bank.

Prizes will be awarded to the riders who received the greatest backing from local merchants or individuals. There will be awards in a number of different age groups.

The school which generates the greatest monetary return will also receive a trophy.

One of the reasons given for the large turnout this year was that the riders themselves were asked to approach businessmen to sponsor them. Last year the sorority contacted local merchants and then sought riders to accept the sponsors' pledge.

Leading the procession of bikers out of town were John Pinnix, of Chillicothe, and his daughter, Debbie. Pinnix rode a 60-inch highwheeler while his daughter mounted a miniature reproduction which was made in Italy. Pinnix's bike, made in 1881, had belonged to his grandfather.

The bicyclists and distance runners took Rowe Ging Road from Wilson Elementary School, through the Lakewood Hills subdivision, across the CCC Highway-W down Palmer Road to Bloomingburg-New Holland Road, past Miami Trace High School to Lewis Road, and then returned the riders to the city by way of Lewis Street.

PORT ELIZABETH, South Africa (AP) — From the monthly journal of the Association of Law Societies of South Africa:

"It raineth every day
"Upon the just and unjust fella
"But more upon the just,
"because
"The unjust has the Just's umbrella."

United telephone contract approved

SIDNEY, Ohio (AP) — A new contract covering about 200 United Telephone Co. employes in the Sidney, Greenville and Eaton areas has been approved, retroactive to May 5.

The new pact, calling for first-year wage increases for top scale plant employes of 39 cents an hour and of 21 cents an hour for traffic employes, was okayed by members of Local 392 of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, the firm announced.

It runs through May 15, 1977.

Jonathon Winters professional painter

By ROBERT MURPHY

HONOLULU (AP) — Most people think of Jonathan Winters as a rotund funny man who can make people laugh by imitating a chipmunk in a tree or talking like a little old lady.

But Winters, now in his 25th year in show business, has another creative outlet that's been somewhat hidden from the public eye. He's an artist.

"I started out to be an artist originally," he said during a recent vacation in Hawaii. "I studied in school and was going very good until somehow I got tripped up and fell into show business as a comedian.

"Not to say I don't thank God for the day I got into show business, but I must say art was my first love."

Winters says it's difficult to describe what kind of painter he is or to label his art.

"It's like my comedy. . . satirical, and all my paintings are improvisational," he said, adding that they are basically a combination of surrealism and primitiveness.

"And to compare me with anybody, and I don't say this on an ego trip, would be hard to do," said Winters.

HE EXPLAINED that he just tries to create on canvas by sitting down and painting what comes into his head.

"When I get in front of that canvas, I just hope and pray that it will all come together," he said. "I don't plan much. . . I just let my mind wander and paint what comes to mind."

And when Winters' mind is at work or wandering, things often come out funny.

"The first show was back in November, and I did very well," he said. "I think we sold 75 per cent of what we offered."

"Well, they vary. . . anywhere from $50 to $1,500."

The jolly comedian paints in the basement of his Los Angeles home, which he admits is not the most chic place in the world.

"It has little or no light, especially no great northern light. . . But that all doesn't matter, I still have room to have fun."

He also says painting is a great way to "unwind."

"It's peaceful and lets all your thoughts clear out."

AS FOR the future of his art, Winters says he will take it up on a regular basis when he "decides to hang it up in show business, and as to when that will be is anybody's guess."

Winters is happy to be recognized as a successful and very funny comedian but says the desire is there to be remembered as a good artist.

"You know, it would be kind of fun to be remembered that way," he said.

Opening lead - ace of diamonds.

If you bid and make six hearts vulnerable in duplicate bridge, you score 1,430 points. If your opponents sacrifice against the slam, going down 1,400 points, they get slightly the best of the exchange.

The 30 points they save would be meaningless in rubber bridge, but in a pair game, where every point counts, the 30-point saving looms large.

George Rapee, New York star, once held the West hand in a pair event. He got to six hearts — and would have made seven — but South, a courageous soul, bid six spades.

Rapee doubled and led the ace and another diamond. East won and cashed the K-10 of hearts before playing the king of diamonds at trick four. When declarer ruffed with the nine, Rapee discarded a club!

This extraordinary play worked extremely well. Declarer could not conceive of Rapee's holding the king of spades and he naturally credited East with that card.

Accordingly, when declarer led the jack of spades and West followed low, South rose with the ace on the entirely reasonable basis that nothing could be gained by finessing and that he would escape a trump loser if he found East with the singleton king.

But East showed out and declarer was quickly disillusioned. Rapee won the spade continuation with the king and, having discarded one club, led his remaining one. East took the ace, returned a club which Rapee ruffed, and South was carted off to the tune of 1,700 points.

Had Rapee overruffed the nine of spades with the king, he would have nailed declarer for only 1,400 points and wound up with a poor score. As it was, though, he got an ice-cold top.

Body Protectors: The Glands

Our 5-year-old daughter develops swollen glands in her neck. From time to time with antibiotics they disappear. This happens so often we're beginning to really worry about it. We are afraid that it might be leukemia. Could it be?

Dear Mr. and Mrs. A.:

Your anxiety that your daughter might have leukemia is undoubtedly unfounded. When such anxiety is repressed it can play havoc with the emotional destiny of your child and yourselves.

There are many simple, inconsequential reasons for repeated attacks of swollen glands in the neck.

Lymph glands everywhere in the body act as filters and collect bacteria, waste products and even foreign particles that may have entered into the lymph stream.

All glands are effective protective agents and are placed in important stations everywhere in the body to guard its welfare.

Infected tonsils and adenoids are probably the most obvious reasons for repeated attacks of glandular enlargements. The tonsils and adenoids are glandular structures themselves. When they have lost their protective properties, infection may seep past them and invade the next line of defense, the glands in the neck.

Diseased teeth, gum infections, and scalp infections may cause the glands in the neck to become tender and enlarged.

A complete blood examination will immediately relieve your fears.

It was found that I have a polyp in my bladder. I was told that it is not cancerous, but I worry that this is a possibility.

Mr. R.R. Miss.

Dear Mr. R.:

In most instances, polyps are nonmalignant (benign). Only rarely do these tumors undergo malignant changes.

It is for this reason that surgeons keep these polyps under constant surveillance.

Miss G.K. Nev.

Dear Miss K.:

Almost every known substance can be responsible for an allergic reaction in people sensitive to the substance.

The chemicals in nail polish can cause an allergic reaction. In fact, some people develop itching and swelling of the eyelids which are traceable to nail polish.

O'Grady blasts Rhodes campaign

NEW PHILADELPHIA, Ohio (AP)—Ohioans "cannot afford the luxury" of another administration of former Gov. James A. Rhodes, a campaign official for Gov. John J. Gilligan said here Saturday.

Eugene P. O'Grady, who is heading up Gilligan's re-election effort against Rhodes, said Rhodes' administration ignored problems in education, environment and mental health.

Gilligan has begun a campaign to clean up inefficiency and mismanagement of Ohio's affairs, O'Grady said.

"The job isn't finished," but every year, he said, "it gets a little better and that means hope."

Bonus applications available today

Eligible veterans may receive up to $500 in cash or $1,000 in educational benefits as a result of the bonus approved last session by the General Assembly.

Some 500,000 veterans are expected to apply between now and Dec. 31, 1977 for the benefits, said John W. Bush, bonus commission director.

Bush said it could take months, even up to a year, for some veterans to receive their payments.

He said applications also are available at the veterans services for families of deceased veterans, or men still listed as prisoners of war or missing in action.

Stolen auto recovered; other larcenies reported

A stolen car was recovered by sheriff's deputies over the weekend and an incident of malicious vandalism is being investigated.

A car owned by Thomas D. Wilson, of 227 Olive St., was stolen from the Anderson's Restaurant, parking lot, 1101 Clinton Ave., sometime between 1 p.m. and 7 p.m. Sunday.

Sgt. J.L. Emrick and Auxiliary Deputy J.D. Dray recovered the auto at 12:27 a.m. Monday in the Pennington Bakery parking lot, 1100 Clinton Ave., while they were on routine patrol.

A car owned by Richard Wood, 3540 Culpepper-Trace Rd., was damaged while it was parked at Club 22, CCC-Highway-W, sometime between 9:30 p.m. Saturday and 2 a.m. Sunday, sheriff's deputies reported.

Irish strike call eased

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) — Faced with a government threat to use troops to maintain electric power supplies, militant Protestants have withdrawn plans to expand their general strike to all of Northern Ireland's power sations. But blackouts were continuing in many areas today.

In London, Scotland Yard called for increased vigilance for what it said could be a new bomb offense by the militant Catholic Irish Republican Army.

The statement came after a bomb exploded in a car at the city's airport and a second explosive was defused outside an army building in south London. There were no serious injuries, but police warned persons to be on the guard for bombs in the morning mail.

In Belfast, the Protestant strike leaders backed down Sunday night on their threat to close power stations after Merlyn Rees, Britain's minister of state for Northern Ireland, declared a state of emergency empowering him to bring in army power engineers if the strikers had honored their threat.

Two hours before the deadline, the strikers agreed to keep open the five plants still operating to supply power at a level necessary to ensure the safety of the system. Walkouts at power plants had shut off power to two-thirds of Ulster for long periods on Sunday.

Welfare rolls cut

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — State Welfare Director Charles Bates said today 5,633 persons left welfare rolls the first two months of this year as a direct result of Ohio's Work Registration Program.

Bates said an additional 4,172 persons receiving Aid to Dependent Children or General Relief payments also left the rolls during January and February because of changes in economic status or eligibility.

Nixon pushes health insurance plan via radio

KEY BISCAYNE, Fla. (AP) — President Nixon is making a new pitch for his national health insurance plan as the Senate prepares to launch committee hearings on rival insurance legislation.

Nixon scheduled a nationwide radio address for 12:07 p.m. EDT today. He has delivered a series of similar talks this year following midday network newscasts.

The President was planning to return to Washington Monday night after a four-day weekend here and in the Bahamas. He apparently spent much of his time relaxing but reportedly kept in close touch with the Middle East peace mission of Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Consolidation of agencies being pushed

WASHINGTON (AP) — A controversial plan by the Agriculture Department to consolidate field offices of four major agencies into "service centers" to give farmers one-step service is proceeding on target, officials say.

The plan was announced Nov. 21 and immediately drew protests from many members of Congress and local officials that it would result in USDA offices being closed in many counties.

Although department officials concede some counties will not have full service centers representing all agencies, they say the plan will not mean widespread abandonment of existing offices.

Joseph R. Wright Jr., assistant secretary of agriculture for administration, said rumors that the consolidation plan had been abandoned were not true. But there have been problems in getting full-scale consolidation plans approved at the state level, he told a reporter.

As a result, Wright said, state administrative committees have been asked to submit consolidation plans for counties that already have been agreed upon, meaning that "the more difficult cases" will be worked out later.

Consolidation of county field offices in the USDA network has been going on for many years. But the service center concept announced last fall served notice that consolidation would be undertaken on a broad scale, with no county immune to the possibility of having some of its facilities combined with those in others.

EMERSON WARNER

Retiring water company employe feted at party

Employes of the Ohio Water Service Co., honored Emerson Warner, who is retiring from the company after completing 45 years of service, at a retirement party Saturday night in the Terrace Lounge.

Warner, 425 Comfort Lane, who joined the Ohio Water Service Co., in 1928, has served as assistant manager for the past 14 years.

He started with the Marysville Water Co., in 1928 and worked as a meter reader and meter repairman at Massilon and Circleville, which at that time was one of the properties of the Ohio Water Service Co., of Struthers.

The veteran water company employe came to Washington C. H. in 1929 and served under O. D. Farquar until his retirement in 1955. Warner was elevated to manager of the Washington C. H. office in 1955 and served in that position until 1962 when Everitt Robbins became manager. Warner remained as assistant manager until his retirement.

Voluntary contributions were collected from friends and fellow employes at both the Ohio Water Service Co., plants in Washington C. H. and Marysville. A new fishing rod and reel and other special gifts were presented to the retiring employe.

A total of 50 employes and other special guests attended. Representing the board of directors were Dr. and Mrs. J. H, Persinger. Others guests were Mr. and Mrs. Merrill Sloan, vice president and manager of the Massillon property, Mr. and Mrs. Dell N. Smith, of Marysville, and Mr. and Mrs. Robbins.

Commission eyes regional planning vote allocation

Members of the Fayette County Board of Commissioners Monday morning reviewed a proposal for the allocation of voting strength in the eight-county Mid-Ohio Regional Planning Commission.

Commissioners also were to hold a public hearing on proposed changes in the subdivision regulations for Fayette County at 3 p.m. today. The subdivision regulations will not be officially adopted until a Fayette County Planning Commission public hearng which has been scheduled at 8 p.m. June 18.

Chairman J. Herbert Perrill said a special Mid-Ohio Regional Planning negotiating sub-committee has devised a single voting system using a structuring formula. The proposed voting system will be considered during a meeting at 10 a.m. Thursday in Columbus.

Under the proposal, Perrill said a double requirement would exist for a quorum to take action on any matter.

The provisions would require that 51 per cent of the total board members (at least 25) be present and that three-fourths of the member (at least 6) counties be represented.

IN ADDITION, Perrill noted that a three-fourths vote of all members present would be required to constitute an official action.

He said if the quorum requirement is not met at a given meeting, official action could be taken at the next meeting by a three-fourths vote of 51 per cent of the total board members.

An important feature of the proposal is that costs of operation would be allocated to the governmental units on the basis of their voting percentage, not per capita.

At least two-thirds of the representatives from each county must be local elected officials; one commissioner from each member county; one county appointee, preferably a township trustee; one person to represent all villages in the county, and one representative from each county for each increment of 100,000 population.

Under the proposal, Fayette, Fairfield, Delaware, Madison, Pickaway and Union counties would each have 8.3 per cent of the voting strength. Franklin County would have 39.7 per cent and Licking County would have 10.5 per cent.

Fayette County has only 2.2 per cent of the population of the eight-county area and would have four representatives on the 48-member board.

Kennedy's income said $461,444

BOSTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy paid $217,844 in federal income taxes on an unadjusted gross income of $461,444 in 1973, according to tax records he disclosed to two Boston newspapers.

The Boston Herald American and the Boston Globe today published the joint tax return filed by Kennedy and his wife, Joan, reporting the Massachusetts Democrat's income beyond his congressional salary of $42,500.

Kennedy's income included $21,567 in dividends, $270,080 from the Joseph P. Kennedy 1926 trust, $126,257 from the Joseph P. Kennedy 1936 trust, $3,355 from publications, speaking fees and miscellaneous sources and $1,623 from four oil wells in Texas and Louisiana owned by the Forest Oil Co. The late Joseph P. Kennedy was the senator's father.

Kennedy deducted from his gross income $38,773 in current taxes other than federal; $24,985 for mortgage payments; $4,678 for charitable contributions; and $26,308 in net miscellaneous deductions.

Kennedy declined to be immediately quoted about his tax returns, but said the data was released because of the public's growing concern about the extra income of elected officials.

Gun accident brings charges

DEFIANCE, Ohio(AP) — An 18-year-old Ney youth has been charged with negligent homicide in the death Sunday of Alvin Groelick, 15.

Police said Steve Kutzlic was holding a sawed-off .22-caliber rifle when it discharged, striking Groelick in the chest.

The incident occurred in the Hotel Henry in Defiance, police said.
